*"When you have asthma,
two puffs twice a day
is a whole lot better than puffing all day long!"*

"SEREVENT helps keep my asthma symptoms under control."

SEREVENT: Twice-a-day prevention of asthma symptoms.

SEREVENT is the only long-acting, inhaled bronchodilator. SEREVENT is designed to help prevent your asthma symptoms before they start. When used just two puffs, twice a day – morning and evening – approximately 12 hours apart, SEREVENT helps keep air passages open so your breathing remains free and clear. Results compared to fast-acting bronchodilators:

- Less chance of waking up in the middle of the night, coughing or wheezing
- Fewer symptoms with exercise
- Fewer episodes of difficult breathing

With SEREVENT as one part of your treatment program, you may be able to reduce the number of times you have to use your fast-acting bronchodilator and get on with your life with less fear that asthma symptoms might be sneaking up on you.

SEREVENT: What you need to know.

• SEREVENT is not a substitute for fast-acting bronchodilators to treat sudden asthma symptoms and should never be taken more than twice a day. SEREVENT is a preventive medication that takes longer to be effective. So when sudden asthma symptoms occur, you will still need your fast-acting bronchodilator prescribed by your doctor.

• SEREVENT also is not a substitute for medication that controls inflammation in your lungs (inhaled or oral corticosteroids). SEREVENT can be a valuable preventive medication, but it is intended to be just one part of your treatment program.

• Do not stop or change the dosage of your other asthma medications without talking to your doctor. Even if you feel better, any change in dosage or medication could result in your condition worsening. Of course, if your condition worsens, contact your doctor immediately.

Is SEREVENT right for you? Only your doctor can decide.

SEREVENT is available by prescription only and is indicated for patients 12 and older.

The most common side effects of SEREVENT are: headache (10%), tremor (3%), and cough (3%). Of course, no medication works unless you are committed to stick with it. So see your doctor about SEREVENT. It can help you control your asthma instead of letting your asthma control you.

Please see important information on the following pages.

Advertisement

SEREVENT® (salmeterol xinafoate) Inhalation Aerosol

Bronchodilator Aerosol For Oral Inhalation Only

The following is a brief summary only; see full prescribing information for complete product information.

CONTRAINDICATIONS: SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol is contraindicated in patients with a history of hypersensitivity to any of the components.

WARNINGS:

IMPORTANT INFORMATION: SEREVENT INHALATION AEROSOL SHOULD NOT BE INITIATED IN PATIENTS WITH SIGNIFICANTLY WORSENING OR ACUTELY DETERIORATING ASTHMA, WHICH MAY BE A LIFE-THREATENING CONDITION. Serious acute respiratory events, including fatalities, have been reported, both in the United States and worldwide, when SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol has been initiated in this situation.

Although it is not possible from these reports to determine whether SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol contributed to these adverse events or simply failed to relieve the deteriorating asthma, the use of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol in this setting is inappropriate.

SEREVENT INHALATION AEROSOL SHOULD NOT BE USED TO TREAT ACUTE SYMPTOMS. It is crucial to inform patients of this and prescribe a short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonist for this purpose as well as warn them that increasing inhaled beta₂-agonist use is a signal of deteriorating asthma.

SEREVENT INHALATION AEROSOL IS NOT A SUBSTITUTE FOR INHALED OR ORAL CORTICOSTEROIDS. Corticosteroids should not be stopped or reduced when SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol is initiated.

(See PRECAUTIONS: Information for Patients and PATIENT'S INSTRUCTIONS FOR USE.)

1. Do Not Introduce SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol as a Treatment for Acutely Deteriorating Asthma: SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol is intended for the maintenance treatment of asthma (see INDICATIONS AND USAGE section of full prescribing information) and should not be introduced in acutely deteriorating asthma, which is a potentially life-threatening condition. There are no data demonstrating that SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol provides greater efficacy than or additional efficacy to short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonists in patients with worsening asthma. Serious acute respiratory events, including fatalities, have been reported, both in the US and worldwide, in patients receiving SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol. In most cases, these have occurred in patients with severe asthma (e.g., patients with a history of corticosteroid dependence, low pulmonary function, intubation, mechanical ventilation, frequent hospitalizations, or previous life-threatening acute asthma exacerbations) and/or in some patients in whom asthma has been acutely deteriorating (e.g., unresponsive to usual medications, increasing need for inhaled, short-acting beta₂-agonists; increasing need for systemic corticosteroids; significant increase in symptoms recent emergency room visits; sudden or progressive deterioration in pulmonary function). However, they have occurred in a few patients with less severe asthma as well. It was not possible from these reports to determine whether SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol contributed to these events or simply failed to relieve the deteriorating asthma.

2. Do Not Use SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol to Treat Acute Symptoms: A short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonist, not SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol, should be used to relieve acute asthma symptoms. When prescribing SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol, the physician must also provide the patient with a short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonist (e.g., albuterol) for treatment of symptoms that occur acutely, despite regular twice daily (morning and evening) use of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol.

When beginning treatment with SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol, patients who have been taking short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonists on a regular basis (e.g., q.i.d.) should be instructed to discontinue the regular use of these drugs and use them only for symptomatic relief if they develop acute asthma symptoms while taking SEREVENT® (salmeterol xinafoate) Inhalation Aerosol (see PRECAUTIONS: Information for Patients).

3. Watch for Increasing Use of Short-Acting, Inhaled Beta₂-Agonists, Which Is a Marker of Deteriorating Asthma: Asthma may deteriorate acutely over a period of hours or chronically over several days or longer. If the patient's short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonist becomes less effective or the patient needs more inhalations than usual, this may be a marker of destabilization of asthma. In this setting, the patient requires immediate reevaluation with reassessment of the treatment regimen, giving special consideration to the possible need for corticosteroids. If the patient uses four or more inhalations per day of a short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonist for 2 or more consecutive days, or if more than one canister (200 inhalations per canister) of short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonist is used in an 8-week period in conjunction with SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol, then the patient should consult the physician for reevaluation. Increasing the daily dosage of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol in this situation is not appropriate. SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol should not be used more frequently than twice daily (morning and evening) at the recommended dose of two inhalations.

4. Do Not Use SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol as a Substitute for Oral or Inhaled Corticosteroids: There are no data demonstrating that SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol has a clinical anti-inflammatory effect and could be expected to take the place of, or reduce the dose of, corticosteroids. Patients who already require oral or inhaled corticosteroids for treatment of asthma should be continued on this type of treatment even if they feel better as a result of initiating SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol. Any change in corticosteroid dosage should be made ONLY after clinical evaluation (see PRECAUTIONS: Information for Patients).

5. Do Not Exceed Recommended Dosage: As with other inhaled beta₂-adrenergic drugs, SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol should not be used more often or at higher doses than recommended. Fatalities have been reported in association with excessive use of inhaled sympathomimetic drugs. Large doses of inhaled or oral salmeterol (12 to 20 times the recommended dose) have been associated with clinically significant prolongation of the QTc interval, which has the potential for producing ventricular arrhythmias.

6. Paradoxical Bronchospasm: As with other inhaled asthma medications, paradoxical bronchospasm (which can be life threatening) has been reported following the use of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol. If it occurs, treatment with SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol should be discontinued immediately and alternative therapy instituted.

7. Immediate Hypersensitivity Reactions: Immediate hypersensitivity reactions may occur after administration of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol, as demonstrated by rare cases of urticaria, angioedema, rash, and bronchospasm.

8. Upper Airway Symptoms: Symptoms of laryngeal spasm, irritation, or swelling, such as stridor and choking, have been reported rarely in patients receiving SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol.

PRECAUTIONS:

General: 1. Use With Spacer or Other Devices: The safety and effectiveness of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol when used with a spacer or other devices have not been adequately studied.

2. Cardiovascular and Other Effects: No effect on the cardiovascular system is usually seen after the administration of inhaled salmeterol in recommended doses, but the cardiovascular and central nervous system effects seen with all sympathomimetic drugs (e.g., increased blood pressure, heart rate, excitement) can occur after use of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol and may require discontinuation of the drug. Salmeterol, like all sympathomimetic amines, should be used with caution in patients with cardiovascular disorders, especially coronary insufficiency, cardiac arrhythmias, and hypertension; in patients with convulsive disorders or thyrotoxicosis; and in patients who are unusually responsive to sympathomimetic amines.

As has been described with other beta₂-adrenergic agonist bronchodilators, clinically significant changes in systolic and/or diastolic blood pressure, pulse rate, and electrocardiograms have been seen infrequently in individual patients in controlled clinical studies with salmeterol.

3. Metabolic Effects: Doses of the related beta₂-adrenoceptor agonist albuterol, when administered intravenously, have been reported to aggravate preexisting diabetes mellitus and ketoacidosis. No effects on glucose have been seen with SEREVENT® (salmeterol xinafoate) Inhalation Aerosol at recommended doses. Administration of beta₂-adrenoceptor agonists may cause a decrease in serum potassium, possibly through intracellular shunting, which has the potential to increase the likelihood of arrhythmias. The decrease is usually transient, not requiring supplementation.

Clinically significant changes in blood glucose and/or serum potassium were seen rarely during clinical studies with long-term administration of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol at recommended doses.

Information for Patients: See illustrated Patient's Instructions for Use SHAKE WELL BEFORE USING.

It is important that patients understand how to use SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol appropriately and how it should be used in relation to other asthma medications they are taking. Patients should be given the following information:

1. Shake well before using.
2. The recommended dosage (two inhalations twice daily, morning and evening) should not be exceeded.
3. SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol is not meant to relieve acute asthma symptoms and extra doses should not be used for that purpose. Acute symptoms should be treated with a short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonist such as albuterol (the physician should provide the patient with such medication and instruct the patient in how it should be used).
4. The physician should be notified immediately if any of the following situations occur, which may be a sign of seriously worsening asthma:
 - Decreasing effectiveness of short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonists
 - Need for more inhalations than usual of short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonists
 - Use of four or more inhalations per day of a short-acting beta₂-agonist for 2 or more days consecutively
 - Use of more than one canister of a short-acting, inhaled beta₂-agonist in an 8-week period (i.e., canister with 200 inhalations)
5. SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol should not be used as a substitute for oral or inhaled corticosteroids. The dosage of these medications should not be changed and they should not be stopped without consulting the physician, even if the patient feels better after initiating treatment with SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol.
6. Patients should be cautioned regarding potential adverse cardiovascular effects, such as palpitations or chest pain, related to the use of additional beta₂-agonist.
7. In patients receiving SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol, other inhaled medications should be used only as directed by the physician.
8. When using SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol to prevent exercise-induced bronchospasm, patients should take the dose at least 30 to 60 minutes before exercise.

Drug Interactions: Short-Acting Beta-Agonists: In the two 3-month, repetitive-dose clinical trials (n=184), the mean daily need for additional beta₂-agonist use was 1 to 1½ inhalations per day, but some patients used more. Eight percent of patients used at least eight inhalations per day at least on one occasion. Six percent used 9 to 12 inhalations at least once. There were 15 patients (8%) who averaged over four inhalations per day. Four of these used an average of 8 to 11 inhalations per day. In these 15 patients there was no observed increase in frequency of cardiovascular adverse events. The safety of concomitant use of more than eight inhalations per day of short-acting beta₂-agonists with SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol has not been established. In 15 patients who experienced worsening of asthma while receiving SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol, nebulized albuterol (one dose in most) led to improvement in FEV₁ and no increase in occurrence of cardiovascular adverse events.

Monoamine Oxidase Inhibitors and Tricyclic Antidepressants: Salmeterol should be administered with extreme caution to patients being treated with monoamine oxidase inhibitors or tricyclic antidepressants because the action of salmeterol on the vascular system may be potentiated by these agents.

Corticosteroids and Cromoglycate: In clinical trials, inhaled corticosteroids and/or inhaled cromolyn sodium did not alter the safety profile of SEREVENT® (salmeterol xinafoate) Inhalation Aerosol when administered concurrently.

Methylxanthines: The concurrent use of intravenously or orally administered methylxanthines (e.g., aminophylline, theophylline) by patients receiving SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol has not been completely evaluated. In one clinical trial, 87 patients receiving SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol 42 mcg twice daily concurrently with a theophylline product had adverse event rates similar to those in 71 patients receiving SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol without theophylline. Resting heart rates were slightly higher in the patients on theophylline but were little affected by SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol therapy.

Carcinogenesis, Mutagenesis, Impairment of Fertility: In an 18-month oral carcinogenicity study in CD-1 mice, salmeterol xinafoate caused a dose-related increase in the incidence of smooth muscle hyperplasia, cystic glandular hyperplasia, and leiomyomas of the uterus and a dose-related increase in the incidence of cysts in the ovaries. A higher incidence of leiomyosarcomas was not statistically significant; tumor findings were observed at oral doses of 1.4 and 10 mg/kg, which gave 9 and 63 times, respectively, the human exposure based on rodent/human AUC comparisons.

Salmeterol caused a dose-related increase in the incidence of mesovarian leiomyomas and ovarian cysts in Sprague Dawley rats in a 24-month inhalation/oral carcinogenicity study. Tumors were observed in rats receiving doses of 0.68 and 2.58 mg/kg per day (about 55 and 215 times the recommended clinical dose [mg/m²]). These findings in rodents are similar to those reported previously for other beta₂-adrenergic agonist drugs. The relevance of these findings to human use is unknown.

No significant effects occurred in mice at 0.2 mg/kg (1.3 times the recommended clinical dose based on comparisons of the AUCs) and in rats at 0.21 mg/kg (15 times the recommended clinical dose on a mg/m² basis).

Salmeterol xinafoate produced no detectable or reproducible increases in microbial and mammalian gene mutation in vitro. No clastogenic activity occurred in vitro in human lymphocytes or in vivo in a rat micronucleus test. No effects on fertility were identified in male and female rats treated orally with salmeterol xinafoate at doses up to 2 mg/kg orally (about 160 times the recommended clinical dose on a mg/m² basis).

Pregnancy: Teratogenic Effects: Pregnancy Category C: No significant effects of maternal exposure to oral salmeterol xinafoate occurred in the rat at doses up to the equivalent of about 160 times the recommended clinical dose on a mg/m² basis. Dutch rabbit fetuses exposed to salmeterol xinafoate in utero exhibited effects characteristically resulting from beta₂-adrenoceptor stimulation; these included precocious eyelid openings, cleft palate, sternebral fusion, limb and paw flexures, and delayed ossification of the frontal cranial bones. No significant effects occurred at 0.6 mg/kg given orally (12 times the recommended clinical dose based on comparison of the AUCs).

New Zealand White rabbits were less sensitive since only delayed ossification of the frontal bones was seen at 10 mg/kg given orally (approximately 1,600 times the recommended clinical dose on a mg/m² basis). Extensive use of other beta₂-agonists has provided no evidence that these class effects in animals are relevant to use in humans. There are no adequate and well-controlled studies with SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol in pregnant women. SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol should be used during pregnancy only if the potential benefit justifies the potential risk to the fetus.

Use in Labor and Delivery: There are no well-controlled human studies that have investigated effects of salmeterol on preterm labor or labor at term. Because of the potential for beta₂-agonist interference with uterine contractility, use of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol during labor should be restricted to those patients in whom the benefits clearly outweigh the risks.

Nursing Mothers: Plasma levels of salmeterol after inhaled therapeutic doses are very low (85 to 200 pg/mL) in humans. In lactating rats dosed with radiolabeled salmeterol, levels of radioactivity were similar in plasma and milk. In rats, concentrations of salmeterol in plasma and milk were similar. The xinafoate moiety is also transferred to milk in rats at concentrations of about half the corresponding level in plasma. However, since there is no experience with use of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol by nursing mothers, a decision should be made whether to discontinue nursing or to discontinue the drug, taking into account the importance of the drug to the mother. Caution should be exercised when salmeterol xinafoate is administered to a nursing woman.

Pediatric Use: The safety and effectiveness of SEREVENT® (salmeterol xinafoate) Inhalation Aerosol in children younger than 12 years of age have not been established.

Geriatric Use: Of the total number of patients who received SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol in all clinical studies, 241 were 65 years and older. Geriatric patients (65 years and older) with reversible obstructive airway disease were evaluated in four well-controlled studies of 3 weeks' to 3 months' duration. Two placebo-controlled, crossover studies evaluated twice-daily dosing with salmeterol for 21 to 28 days in 45 patients. An additional 75 geriatric patients were treated with salmeterol for 3 months in two large parallel-group, multicenter studies. These 120 patients experienced increases in AM and PM peak expiratory flow rate and decreases in diurnal variation in peak expiratory flow rate similar to responses seen in the total populations of the two latter studies. The adverse event type and frequency in geriatric patients were not different from those of the total populations studied.

No apparent differences in the efficacy and safety of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol were observed when geriatric patients were compared with younger patients in clinical trials. As with other beta₂-agonists, however, special caution should be observed when using SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol in elderly patients who have concomitant cardiovascular disease that could be adversely affected by this class of drug. Based on available data, no adjustment of salmeterol dosage in geriatric patients is warranted.

ADVERSE REACTIONS: Adverse reactions to salmeterol are similar in nature to reactions to other selective beta₂-adrenoceptor agonists, i.e. tachycardia, palpitations; immediate hypersensitivity reactions, including urticaria, angioedema, rash, bronchospasm (see WARNINGS); headache; tremor; nervousness; and paradoxical bronchospasm (see WARNINGS).

Two multicenter, 12-week, controlled studies have evaluated twice-daily doses of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol in patients 12 years of age and older with asthma. The following table reports the incidence of adverse events in these two studies.

Adverse Experience Incidence in Two Large 12-Week Clinical Trials*

Adverse Event Type	Percent of Patients
	Placebo n=187	SEREVENT 42 mcg b.i.d. n=184	Albuterol 180 mcg q.i.d. n=185
Ear, nose, and throat
Upper respiratory tract infection	13	14	16*
Nasopharyngitis	12	14	11
Disease of nasal cavity/sinus	4	6	1
Sinus headache	2	4	<1
Gastrointestinal
Stomachache	0	4	0
Neurological
Headache	23	28	27
Tremor	2	4	3
Respiratory
Cough	6	7	3
Lower respiratory infection	2	4	2

*The only adverse experience classified as serious was one case of upper respiratory tract infection in a patient treated with albuterol.

The table above includes all events (whether considered drug related or nondrug related by the investigator) that occurred at a rate of over 3% in the SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol treatment group and were more common in the SEREVENT® (salmeterol xinafoate) Inhalation Aerosol group than in the placebo group.

Pharyngitis, allergic rhinitis, dizziness/giddiness, and influenza occurred at 3% or more but were equally common on placebo. Other events occurring in the SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol treatment group at a frequency of 1% to 3% were as follows:

Cardiovascular: Tachycardia, palpitations

Ear, Nose, and Throat: Rhinitis, laryngitis

Gastrointestinal: Nausea, viral gastroenteritis, nausea and vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal pain.

Hypersensitivity: Urticaria

Mouth and Teeth: Dental pain

Musculoskeletal: Pain in joint, back pain, muscle cramp/contraction, myalgia/myositis, muscular soreness.

Neurological: Nervousness, malaise/fatigue

Respiratory: Tracheitis/bronchitis

Skin: Rash/skin eruption

Urogenital: Dysmenorrhea

In small dose-response studies, tremor, nervousness, and palpitations appeared to be dose related.

Postmarketing Experience: In extensive US and worldwide postmarketing experience, serious exacerbations of asthma, including some that have been fatal, have been reported. In most cases, these have occurred in patients with severe asthma and/or in some patients in whom asthma has been acutely deteriorating (see WARNINGS no. 1), but they have occurred in a few patients with less severe asthma as well. It was not possible from these reports to determine whether SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol contributed to these events or simply failed to relieve the deteriorating asthma.

Postmarketing experience includes rare reports of upper airway symptoms of laryngeal spasm, irritation, or swelling, such as stridor and choking. Hypertension and arrhythmias have been reported.

OVERDOSAGE: Overdosage with salmeterol may be expected to result in exaggeration of the pharmacologic adverse effects associated with beta-adrenoceptor agonists, including tachycardia and/or arrhythmia, tremor, headache, and muscle cramps. Overdosage with salmeterol can lead to clinically significant prolongation of the QT_c interval, which can produce ventricular arrhythmias. Other signs of overdosage may include hypokalemia and hyperglycemia.

In these cases, therapy with SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol and all beta-adrenergic-stimulant drugs should be stopped, supportive therapy provided, and judicious use of a beta-adrenergic blocking agent should be considered, bearing in mind the possibility that such agents can produce bronchospasm. Cardiac monitoring is recommended in cases of overdosage.

As with all sympathomimetic pressurized aerosol medications, cardiac arrest and even death may be associated with abuse of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol.

Rats and dogs survived the maximum practicable inhalation doses of salmeterol of 2.9 and 0.7 mg/kg, respectively. The maximum non-lethal oral doses in mice and rats were approximately 150 mg/kg and >1 000 mg/kg, respectively.

Dialysis is not appropriate treatment for overdosage of SEREVENT Inhalation Aerosol.

FRIEND-LY FIRE

Dina Meyer will follow a romance on Friends with a new series

Few women can resist the charms of adorable but dim-witted Joey Tribbiani (Matt LeBlanc) on NBC's Friends, but his newest conquest turns out to be a challenge. Enter Dina Meyer (right), who appears as Joey's love interest for three episodes beginning March 27. Cast as the pretentious Kate Miller, Joey's costar in an off-Broadway show, Meyer—who has played a seductress (Beverly Hills, 90210), an android ("Johnny Mnemonic"), and a peasant ("Dragonheart")—portrays a "serious thespian," a first for her. "Playing an actress isn't difficult," she says. "It's playing the Yalie grad snob that's more challenging, because I don't know from that at all." Though Meyer says she is nothing like her character (she followed her parents' advice and got a college degree in business), she enjoyed playing hard to get. "I think every guy needs that occasionally," she jokes.

She also relished playing someone so unlike Monica, Rachel, or Phoebe. "She doesn't blend in at all, which is good because it separates her from everybody else," says the 28-year-old. "If she were like the other girls, maybe Joey would be trying to make a move on them." (That, of course, he's already tried.)

Next up for Meyer is a role battling alien bugs in the Paul Verhoeven sci-fi thriller "Starship Troopers" and her first starring role in a series. Midway through taping her Friends fling, she was signed by CBS to star opposite David Caruso in an as-yet-untitled dramatic series scheduled for fall. The native New Yorker has already jumped headfirst into her role as an investigator for the U.S. attorney's office in New York City (and Caruso's love interest): "I've had gun training and been fitted for a holster," she says. "I'm ready."

Ask TV GUIDE

Q: Did Brad Pitt ever star in a TV series? My sister says he was on Dallas, but I think she's wrong.

—R.G., Pineville, W.Va.

A: You're both right. Pitt did appear on Dallas, but his only starring role in a series was on the short-lived 1990 Fox drama Glory Days, in which he played an aspiring journalist.

Q: Who played Reba the Mail Lady on Pee-wee's Playhouse?

A: That would be S. Epata Merker-son, who can now be seen on TV in a public-service role of another kind: as Lieutenant Anita Van Buren on Law & Order.

SUDDENLY CUBAN

Nestor Carbonell (above) puts on two things to play Luis, the sexy and self-assured magazine photographer on NBC's Suddenly Susan: the camera that hangs around his neck ("The bigger the lens the better with this guy") and a fake accent. "I started the role as a Spaniard and then [the producers] decided to make the character Cuban, so now I have a Castilian accent with a Cuban background," jokes Carbonell, a 1991 Harvard graduate who majored in English. "The irony is, I spent four years studying English and now I'm speaking broken English."

Because Carbonell, whose parents are Cuban, doesn't want to be dismissed as "the typical Latin lover," he wasn't too sorry when a flirtation with Susan (Brooke Shields) fizzled. "This is a guy who thinks he's the next Antonio Banderas, but he's very far from it," he says. "His ego is inflated, but it's more bark than bite." —S.M.

CHICAGO HOPE'S RESIDENT HAIR-RAISER

Sometimes all it takes is one foot in the door. For actress Amie Carey (right), it was a head full of wild hair. "It was definitely the hair, the boldness of my purple," says the New Jersey native, about landing her role on CBS's Chicago Hope as the funky and flirtatious nurse Maricela Keith.

It was only last year that Carey, 20, was spotted playing one of the angst-riddled characters in the University of Southern California's stage production of Eric Bogosian's "SubUrbia." With no previous on-camera experience, the newcomer was cast in the recently released film adaptation, and her part on Chicago Hope soon followed. "[The producers] said to me, 'Just be yourself,'" she says. But it isn't just her hairstyle (recently changed from bouncy braids to a short, copper-toned coif with blond streaks) or her pierced eyebrow that's attracting notice in the halls of the hospital. Her character's crush on the much older (and romantically weary) Dr. Aaron Shutt (Adam Arkin) has begun to generate heat.

"The writers have talked to me about maybe going out on a date with him, kind of playing up the whole age-difference thing," she says. "Because his character is so frigid and uptight, it would be really fun to see him let loose." —Ty Holland

Stiller as Frank Costanza (above), and Vince Lombardi.

STILLER'S THE ONE

It may look like those popular Nike ads featuring legendary Green Bay Packers coach Vince Lombardi were made using "Forrest Gump"-style wizardry. But veteran character actor Jerry Stiller (left) is the one responsible for breathing new life into the "ghost of Vince Lombardi," outfitted in his trademark glasses, camel-hair coat, and "that hat!"

It's "a magical makeup job," says Stiller, known to millions as Frank Costanza, George's grumpy old man on Seinfeld. The response to the ads has been so overwhelming that he says he's "thinking of maybe doing the ghost of Morey Amsterdam, because people used to mistake me for him all the time."

In the meantime, Stiller is on Broadway in Chekhov's "Three Sisters" and is awaiting word on next season's Seinfeld.

"I could go into business with Kramer or be put into a home for men who scream at their wives," he says. "Besides, it really all depends on what's going on with George."

—José A. Martínez

ELLEN WATCH

ABC's Ellen continues to tease viewers about the imminent revelation that she's gay (see story on page 49). On the April 1 episode, Ellen returns home after a strenuous workout and plops onto her sofa. "If it wasn't frowned upon by society," she says, "I'd marry this couch."

FAR FROM THE MODELING CROWD

The world does not need another style book full of 83-pound women telling you what's chic," says Linda Dano. "What the world does need is a book that throws all that out the window."

So the Emmy-winning star of the NBC soap Another World decided to write one. Looking Great... It Doesn't Have to Hurt (Putnam), Dano's primer for Average Josephines—or, as she says, "the ones who open up the latest issue of Vogue and go, 'Huh?'"—hits bookstores April 1.

It arrives not a moment too soon, at least according to Dano, who also runs a fashion consulting business and designs accessories for QVC. "Go to any mall in America," she says, "and you'll see what little regard women have for themselves. I want to reach women who don't even think about being stylish anymore." Coauthored with Anne Kyle, the book defines different categories of consumers—the Size-Deluded, the Repeat Offender, the Shopaholic, the Sale Addict, the Sweatshopper—some of which even describe Dano. "I've roamed malls buying things I have no use for, just for the sake of buying," she admits.

But can regular folks really relate? "OK, I'm not a checker at the market, but deep down I'm the same as these women," says the 53-year-old Dano. "I'm willing to talk about my bulging thighs and my fat, hanging arms and how I want to eat 12 doughnuts when I don't like myself."

And, yes, there are times when even she can't get it together. "One day I was down on my hands and knees at Kmart looking for some linen thing I desperately needed—I was in overalls, and my hair hadn't been brushed for two days—and this lady customer got down on the floor with me and said, 'Aren't you Linda Dano?' I was going to deny it, but I just apologized profusely." —Michael Logan

CHEERS & JEERS

JEERS to sophomoric humor. MTV phenoms Pauly Shore and Jenny McCarthy were each granted a comedy series this month. But in each case, we get too much of the star's over-the-top personality and not enough jokes. Fox's Pauly sputters along on breast gags and feeble spoofs (Shore as James Bond; Shore as a swimsuit model). On MTV's The Jenny McCarthy Show, McCarthy opts for the total gross-out, with skits built around vomiting and adult diapers.

Crude cutups: Shore and McCarthy.

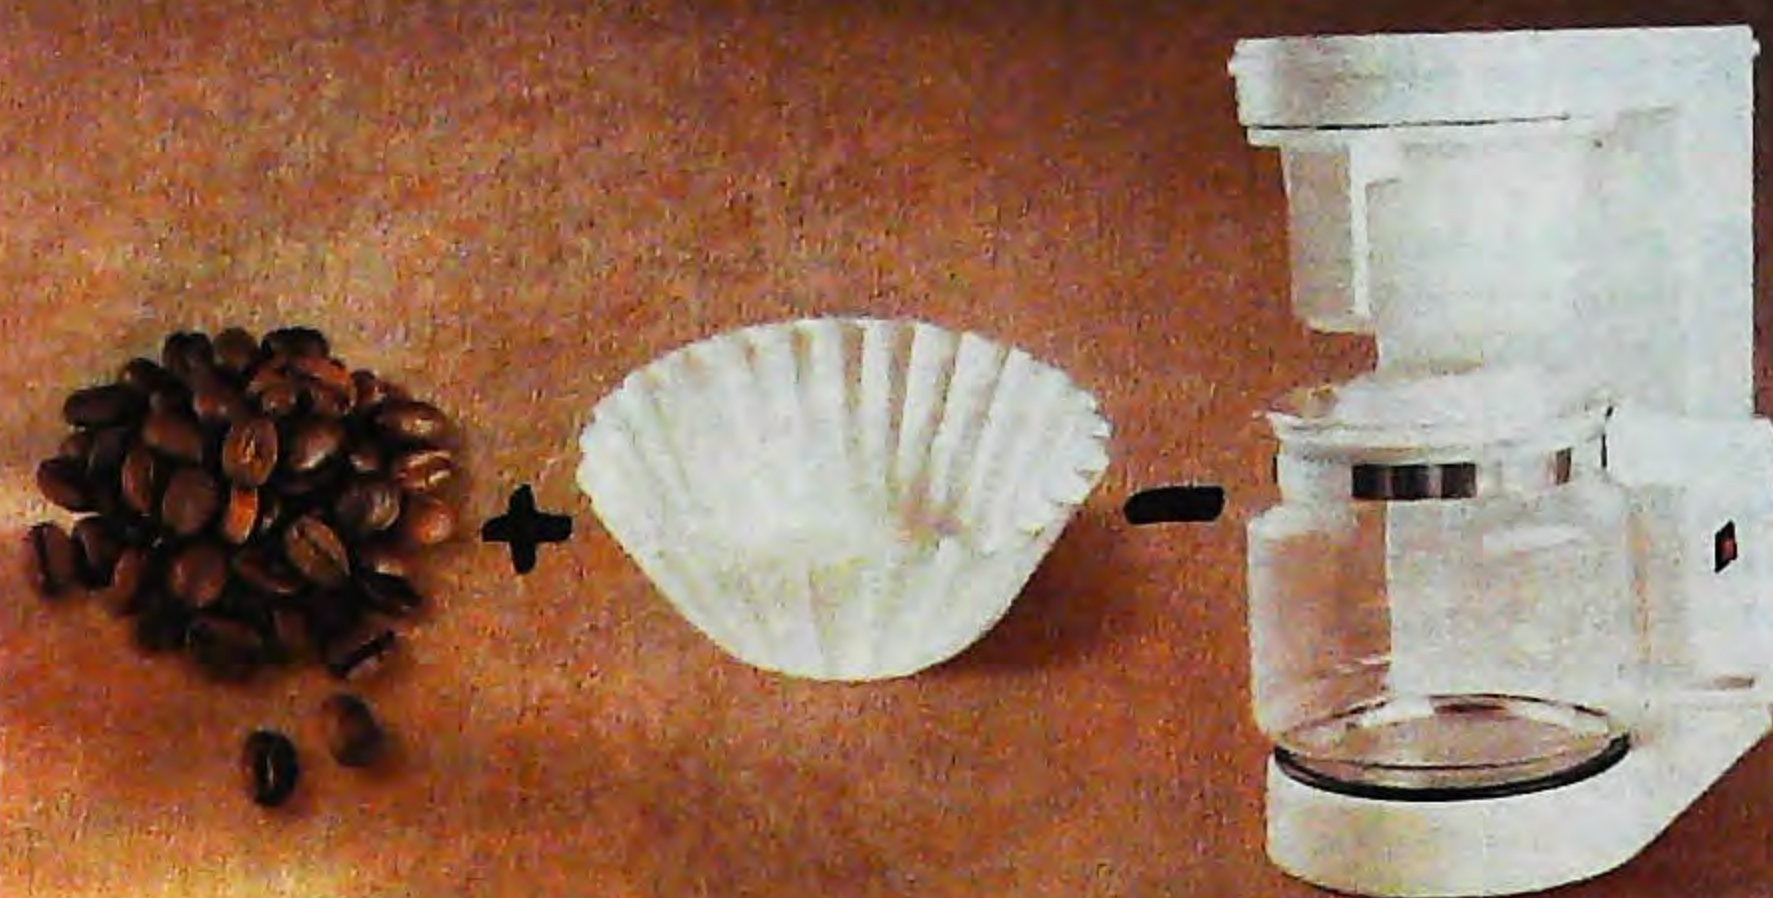

And she attacks this off-color material with the gusto of Suzanne Somers possessed by the spirit of Chris Farley. Without funny writing, both Shore and McCarthy are reduced to exhibitionism.

JEERS to unqualified medical advice. The latest trend in commercials involves actresses playing receptionists in various doctors' offices telling us which over-the-counter medicines to take. So far, we've heard from employees of a dermatologist, a dentist, and several general practitioners. Are these ads effective? Do people feel reassured following treatment courses recommended by the woman at the front desk? Exactly what is their medical training? Would you accept psychological counseling from Marcia Wallace (Carol on The Bob Newhart Show)? Don't answer that.

JEERS to abandoned integrity. NBC rabidly promoted the recent appearance of Howard Stern on Saturday Night Live, but his actual participation was a sham. Radio's bad boy turned up only briefly during "Weekend Update." As Norm Macdonald fawned over him, Stern made a few ill-considered, unamusing remarks about how bad SNL has become, and then called for a clip of his movie, "Private Parts," to be shown. Never before in SNL's 22-year history has the show submitted to such blatant, abject self-promotion. Even Caryl & Marilyn wouldn't stoop this low.

JEERS to misnomers. When Larry King had the cast of Friends on his talk forum recently, he mangled Lisa Kudrow's name, misidentified Matthew Perry's character, Chandler, as Charles, and addressed David Schwimmer as Richard. When Schwimmer brought the mistake to King's attention, the chatmeister harrumphed that the young actor looked like a Richard. Schwimmer got back at him by pointedly referring to the CNN host as Steve. That's funny, he always looked like an Arthur to us.

CHEERS to fresh beginnings. One thing television has gotten markedly better at this season is creating intriguing and stylish opening credits for network shows, from the sepia-toned staccato footage that ushers in The Practice to the whimsical cartoon introduction to The Naked Truth. In some cases the preludes are more imaginative and interesting than the shows themselves. (Suddenly Susan, Spy Game, and Boston Common spring immediately to mind.) Still, we think these improved prologues augur well for the future of television. Today, the opening credits; tomorrow, the programs!

BY JEFF JARVIS

JUST SHOOT ME

NBC, Wednesdays, 9:30 P.M./ET

As every husband and boyfriend knows, women's magazines can be highly entertaining. It's great fun to look over your mate's shoulder (and tease her, if you dare) as she reads about how to fix her life in one easy page: Sex, wardrobe, career, diet, family—there's nothing a women's magazine can't improve upon. And let's not forget that these paeans to positive mental attitude and good sex are also filled with beautiful women beautifully dressed. So what's not to love? I'm amazed that it took this long for somebody to come up with the brilliant idea of making a sitcom about one.

The fictional periodical behind Just Shoot Me, called Blush, is not one of your glossier, tonier (read: respectable) sisters of the newsstand. It's a Cosmo with even less class: shamelessly blunt, eagerly brazen. The same can be said of its publisher, played by a rather drained looking George Segal. This man is a pig, and that's why his daughter, played by Laura San Giacomo, has had little to do with him for years. She's ashamed of his magazine ("How to make any man your love slave," it instructs). She's none too proud of the fact that he married her own high-school classmate (about their wedding vows, San Giacomo complains, "You let the woman quote 'The Lion King'"). And now his child bride is having his baby. "You are your magazine," she chides her dad. "You're glossy. You're slick. The cover's great. But when you open it up, there's nothing inside." He responds, "I got another for you: I get fatter in December." A good mag gag.

When San Giacomo gets fired from her TV-news job—for being blunt and brazen, just like Dad—she lands on his doorstep and goes to work for him, writing stories about breasts and dueling with quips and barbs. She becomes the stranger in his strange land, distrusted by his vipers' den of employees: There's Wendie Malick (of Dream On) doing a spectacular job of playing a once-was model who's leaving youth kicking and clawing. ("My face appeared on over 40 covers!" she protests. "I was the Noxema Gotcha! girl.") David Spade is equally convincing as the office weasel, trying to use his lowly position to suck up to models twice his height. Then there's Enrico Colantoni (of Hope & Gloria) as the glamour photographer who can take even an employee ID picture and make proudly plain San Giacomo a sex symbol. ("Who decides what's beautiful?" she challenges him. He replies, "I do—that's the best part!")

This dynamite set of characters, each well cast, each given quotable lines, should make a great setup for a show. Well, is it a great show? No, not yet. All the pieces are here. But so far, they lack the glossy glue that should hold them together. Shoot is still mostly gag piled upon gag like a stack of photographs of pretty women, without the vision that turns it all into a magazine with style. But that could come. So let's just watch it and see what develops.

A work in progress: Laura San Giacomo and George Segal.

"No matter how trapped in the Krazy Glue of life you may feel, you can get unstuck."

MS. CAMPION'S OPUS

If you compiled a list of the world-class directors working today, only one woman would make the cut—New Zealand's Jane Campion. Her most famous movie, "The Piano," makes its broadcast debut on Monday, March 31, on NBC, and like her other films, it's about a woman struggling with a tremendous emotional burden. Holly Hunter won 1993's Best Actress Oscar for her work as Ada, a mute Scottish woman who immigrates to New Zealand in the 1800s to enter into an arranged marriage.

Although Ada stopped speaking when she was 6, she narrates the movie and explains, "This is not the sound of my voice.... It is the sound of my mind." No one—including Ada—knows why she is mute. The film does suggest, however, that she realizes her voice is one of the few things she can control, and when she signs to her daughter (Anna Paquin, Academy Award winner for Best Supporting Actress) or scribbles notes to others, she has a perverse type of power. Ultimately, Ada personifies alienation, and her character is a metaphor for every woman who has felt cut off in a world dominated by men. Campion's script is perceptive, imaginative, and complex. It's easy to see why it was voted Best Original Screenplay.

The title refers to Ada's treasured piano, which her new husband (Sam Neill) cruelly trades for a piece of land. It becomes the property of a brutish neighbor (Harvey Keitel) who has designs on Ada, and he uses the piano as romantic bait. Hunter and Keitel's scenes together are erotic, but their impact will be blunted after the network makes its cuts.

Intrigued? Then you should rent some of Campion's other films. Her debut, 1989's "Sweetie," is the offbeat tale of an obese woman who terrorizes her working-class family to vent her rage. My favorite Campion film, "An Angel at My Table," followed in 1990. It's a biography of Janet Frame, a New Zealand novelist who was institutionalized after she was misdiagnosed as a schizophrenic. Most recently, Campion directed an ambitious adaptation of Henry James' The Portrait of a Lady. In my opinion, no one in the history of film has ever made better movies about women than Jane Campion.

Another smart, but funny, film about women is "The Truth About Cats & Dogs," which bows April 4 on Cinemax. Janeane Garofalo stars as a radio talk-show host who thinks she's not attractive to men. In a clever variation on the Hunter and Paquin in "The Piano."

Cyrano de Bergerac story, she asks her bombshell neighbor (Uma Thurman) to stand in for her on a date with an interested caller (Ben Chaplin). But before Chaplin can take Thurman out, he has his first date with Garofalo—a romantic, all-night affair on the telephone.

Elsewhere this week, Turner Classic Movies salutes Doris Day and Marlon Brando with movie marathons on April 3, the birthday of both. The best of a weak lot: "Teacher's Pet," with newspaper editor Clark Gable wooing journalism professor Day, and "Burn!" with Brando as a diplomat-turned-revolutionary.

JOHN DOUGH

For several years I have been of two minds on the issue of taxpayer funding for public television. Like many Americans, I have no trouble with the use of public funds to pay for Sesame Street, Nova, and dozens of other shows that I admire but never watch because they're always on at the same time as Drew Carey. If PBS wants to spend my money producing fine programming, my checkbook is open.

But I draw the line when I start seeing fund-raising specials featuring the loopy John Bradshaw, the embalmed Peter, Paul and Mary, and the vapid John Tesh. Yes, yes, I understand that PBS is trying to reach a wider audience, and yes, I understand that Tesh's specials in particular have been tremendously successful at attracting viewer financial support.

But this begs the larger issue. While PBS was created to provide the public with classy, intelligent programming that could not be found elsewhere, Tesh's studiously rotten music—a weird synthesis of Andrew Lloyd Webber's pseudo-rock and Classical Laughing Gas best described as Nebraska Salsa—is the kind of entertainment that can be found in dentists' offices anywhere.

In pillorying Tesh, I am not suggesting that all attempts by PBS to broaden its audience are to be lambasted. Last month's fund-raising campaign, which can be fairly described as the Shtick, Schmaltz, and Schlock Tour, had many fine moments. I thoroughly enjoyed the Jackie Mason: Look Who's Laughing concert from the London Palladium. I was touched by From Lawrence Welk: To America with Love, which paid tribute to the most enduringly lovable schmaltzmeister in the history of American music. And even Colm Wilkinson's over-the-top renditions of hits from Evita, Les Miz, and Phantom of the Opera had a certain engaging quality. If you like that Celtic Mandy Patinkin sort of thing.

But Tesh is a horse of a different color. The idea that my taxes are being used to encourage his Tom Jones mannerisms, his sad little conga solos, his whole Dobie Gillis Gets Down and Boogies All Night

Long stage show makes my blood boil. How ironic that commercial TV should now bring us sophisticated fare like Homicide and NYPD Blue, while PBS brings us pure idiocy like John Tesh and his Electric Lite Orchestra.

Is there a solution to this problem? One idea is to have the Internal Revenue Service include a box on tax returns asking citizens if they want to donate $1 to Tesh, so he doesn't feel the need for more exposure. Another is to ask Tesh, like Aaron Burr before him, to go away.

The option of last resort is for Congress to pull the plug on PBS. Much as I'd miss Jim Lehrer, Placido Domingo, and Barney, I would rather see public television pass into history than have my money back a hack who makes Kenny G sound like Mozart. The government that subsidizes John Tesh today may subsidize Pauly Shore tomorrow. Let's act now before this thing gets really unpleasant.

CLARITIN.

Experience safe and effective seasonal allergy relief

No drowsy side effects.

CLARITIN® gives you effective, nondrowsy relief. In fact, studies show that the incidence of drowsiness was similar to placebo (sugar pill) at the recommended dose. Drowsiness may occur if you take more than the recommended dose.

Works right day and night.

One dose lasts a full 24 hours. So you're clear to do what you want, when you want—without your symptoms or medication getting in the way.

Clear relief for children, too!

Now that CLARITIN Tablets are indicated for ages 6 years and older, children can experience allergy-symptom relief without drowsiness.

CLARITIN® is well tolerated. CLARITIN® has a low occurrence of side effects. Side effects occurred about as often as they did with placebo (sugar pill). Most common were headache, occurring with 12% of people; drowsiness, 8%; fatigue, 4%; and dry mouth, 3%.

Nondrowsy antihistamines, such as CLARITIN®, are available by prescription only.

Notify your doctor of other medication(s) you are currently taking. Consult your doctor for important information concerning this product.

brand of loratadine

TABLETS and SYRUP

BRIEF SUMMARY (For full Prescribing Information, see package insert.)

INDICATIONS AND USAGE: CLARITIN is indicated for the relief of nasal and non-nasal symptoms of seasonal allergic rhinitis and for the treatment of chronic idiopathic urticaria in patients 6 years of age or older.

CONTRAINDICATIONS: CLARITIN is contraindicated in patients who are hypersensitive to this medication or to any of its ingredients.

PRECAUTIONS: General: Patients with liver impairment or renal insufficiency (GFR < 30 mL/min) should be given a lower initial dose (10 mg every other day) (See CLINICAL PHARMACOLOGY: Special Populations.)

Drug Interactions: Loratadine (10 mg once daily) has been coadministered with therapeutic doses of erythromycin, cimetidine, and ketoconazole in controlled clinical pharmacology studies in adult volunteers. Although increased plasma concentrations (AUC 0-24 hrs) of loratadine and/or descarboethoxyloratadine were observed following coadministration of loratadine with each of these drugs in normal volunteers (n = 24 in each study), there were no clinically relevant changes in the safety profile of loratadine, as assessed by electrocardiographic parameters, clinical laboratory tests, vital signs, and adverse events. There were no significant effects on QTc intervals, and no reports of sedation or syncope. No effects on plasma concentrations of cimetidine or ketoconazole were observed. Plasma concentrations (AUC 0-24 hrs) of erythromycin decreased 15% with coadministration of loratadine relative to that observed with erythromycin alone. The clinical relevance of this difference is unknown. These above findings are summarized in the following table:

Effects on Plasma Concentrations (AUC 0-24 hrs) of Loratadine and Descarboethoxyloratadine After 10 Days of Coadministration (Loratadine 10 mg) in Normal Volunteers
	Loratadine	Descarboethoxyloratadine
Erythromycin (500 mg Q8h)	+ 40%	+46%
Cimetidine (300 mg QID)	+103%	+ 6%
Ketoconazole (200 mg Q12h)	+307%	+73%

There does not appear to be an increase in adverse events in subjects who received oral contraceptives and loratadine.

Carcinogenesis, Mutagenesis, and Impairment of Fertility: In an 18-month carcinogenicity study in mice and a 2-year study in rats, loratadine was administered in the diet at doses up to 40 mg/kg (mice) and 25 mg/kg (rats). In the carcinogenicity studies, pharmacokinetic assessments were carried out to determine animal exposure to the drug. AUC data demonstrated that the exposure of mice given 40 mg/kg of loratadine was 3.6 (loratadine) and 18 (descarboethoxyloratadine) times higher than in humans given the maximum recommended daily oral dose. Exposure of rats given 25 mg/kg of loratadine was 28 (loratadine) and 67 (descarboethoxyloratadine) times higher than in humans given the maximum recommended daily oral dose. Male mice given 40 mg/kg had a significantly higher incidence of hepatocellular tumors (combined adenomas and carcinomas) than concurrent controls. In rats, a significantly higher incidence of hepatocellular tumors (combined adenomas and carcinomas) was observed in males given 1 mg/kg and males and females given 25 mg/kg. The clinical significance of these findings during long-term use of CLARITIN is not known.

In mutagenicity studies, there was no evidence of mutagenic potential in reverse (Ames) or forward point mutation (CHO-HGPRT) assays, or in the assay for DNA damage (Rat Primary Hepatocyte Unscheduled DNA Assay) or in two assays for chromosomal aberrations (Human Peripheral Blood Lymphocyte Clastogenesis Assay and the Mouse Bone Marrow Erythrocyte Micronucleus Assay). In the Mouse Lymphoma Assay, a positive finding occurred in the non-activated but not the activated phase of the study.

Decreased fertility in male rats, shown by lower female conception rates, occurred at an oral dose of 64 mg/kg (approximately 50 times the maximum recommended human daily oral dose on a mg/m² basis) and was reversible with cessation of dosing. Loratadine had no effect on male or female fertility or reproduction in the rat at an oral dose of approximately 24 mg/kg (approximately 20 times the maximum recommended human daily oral dose on a mg/m² basis).

Pregnancy Category B: There was no evidence of animal teratogenicity in studies performed in rats and rabbits at oral doses up to 96 mg/kg (approximately 75 times and 150 times, respectively, the maximum recommended human daily oral dose on a mg/m² basis). There are, however, no adequate and well-controlled studies in pregnant women. Because animal reproduction studies are not always predictive of human response, CLARITIN should be used during pregnancy only if clearly needed.

Nursing Mothers: Loratadine and its metabolite, descarboethoxyloratadine, pass easily into breast milk and achieve concentrations that are equivalent to plasma levels with an AUC_{milk}/AUC_{plasma} ratio of 1.17 and 0.85 for loratadine and descarboethoxyloratadine, respectively. Following a single oral dose of 40 mg, a small amount of loratadine and descarboethoxyloratadine was excreted into the breast milk (approximately 0.03% of 40 mg over 48 hours). A decision should be made whether to discontinue nursing or to discontinue the drug, taking into account the importance of the drug to the mother. Caution should be exercised when CLARITIN is administered to a nursing woman.

Pediatric Use: The safety of CLARITIN Syrup at a daily dose of 10 mg has been demonstrated in 188 pediatric patients 6-12 years of age in placebo-controlled 2-week trials. The effectiveness of CLARITIN for the treatment of seasonal allergic rhinitis and chronic idiopathic urticaria in this pediatric age group is based on an extrapolation of the demonstrated efficacy of CLARITIN in adults in these conditions and the likelihood that the disease course, pathophysiology, and the drug's effect are substantially similar to that of the adults. The recommended dose for the pediatric population is based on cross-study comparison of the pharmacokinetics of CLARITIN in adults and pediatric subjects and on the safety profile of loratadine in both adults and pediatric patients at doses equal to or higher than the recommended doses. The safety and effectiveness of CLARITIN in pediatric patients under 6 years of age have not been established.

ADVERSE REACTIONS: CLARITIN Tablets: Approximately 90,000 patients, aged 12 and older, received CLARITIN Tablets 10 mg once daily in controlled and uncontrolled studies. Placebo-controlled clinical trials at the recommended dose of 10 mg once a day varied from 2 weeks to 6 months' duration. The rate of premature withdrawal from these trials was approximately 2% in both the treated and placebo groups.

Dry Mouth	3	2	4

Adverse events reported in placebo-controlled chronic idiopathic urticaria trials were similar to those reported in allergic rhinitis studies.

Adverse event rates did not appear to differ significantly based on age, sex, or race, although the number of non-white subjects was relatively small.

CLARITIN Syrup: Approximately 300 pediatric patients 6 to 12 years of age received 10 mg loratadine once daily in controlled clinical trials for a period of 8-15 days. Among these, 188 children were treated with 10 mg loratadine syrup once daily in placebo-controlled trials. Adverse events in these pediatric patients were observed to occur with type and frequency similar to those seen in the adult population. The rate of premature discontinuance due to adverse events among pediatric patients receiving loratadine 10 mg daily was less than 1%.

In addition to those adverse events reported above (≥ 2%), the following adverse events have been reported in at least one patient in CLARITIN clinical trials in adult and pediatric patients:

Autonomic Nervous System: Altered lacrimation, altered salivation, flushing, hypoesthesia, impotence, increased sweating, thirst.

Body As A Whole: Angioneurotic edema, asthenia, back pain, blurred vision, chest pain, earache, eye pain, fever, leg cramps, malaise, ngors, tinnitus, viral infection, weight gain.

Cardiovascular System: Hypertension, hypotension, palpitations, syncope, tachycardia.

Central and Peripheral Nervous System: Blepharospasm, dizziness, dysphonia, hypertonia, migraine, paresthesia, tremor, vertigo.

Gastrointestinal System: Altered taste, anorexia, constipation, diarrhea, dyspepsia, flatulence, gastritis, hiccup, increased appetite, nausea, stomatitis, toothache, vomiting.

Musculoskeletal System: Arthralgia, myalgia.

Psychiatric: Agitation, amnesia, anxiety, confusion, decreased libido, depression, impaired concentration, insomnia, irritability, paroniria.

Reproductive System: Breast pain, dysmenorrhea, menorrhagia, vaginitis.

Respiratory System: Bronchitis, bronchospasm, coughing, dyspnea, epistaxis, hemoptysis, laryngitis, nasal dryness, pharyngitis, sinusitis, sneezing.

Skin and Appendages: Dermatitis, dry hair, dry skin, photosensitivity reaction, pruritus, purpura, rash, urticaria.

Urinary System: Altered micturition, urinary discoloration, urinary incontinence, urinary retention.

In addition, the following spontaneous adverse events have been reported rarely during the marketing of loratadine, abnormal hepatic function, including jaundice, hepatitis, and hepatic necrosis, alopecia, anaphylaxis, breast enlargement, erythema multiforme, peripheral edema, seizures, and supraventricular tachyarrhythmias.

OVERDOSAGE: In adults, somnolence, tachycardia, and headache have been reported with overdoses greater than 10 mg with the Tablet formulation (40 to 180 mg). Extrapyramidal signs and palpitations have been reported in children with overdoses of greater than 10 mg of CLARITIN Syrup. In the event of overdose, general symptomatic and supportive measures should be instituted promptly and maintained for as long as necessary.

Treatment of overdose would reasonably consist of emesis (ipecac syrup), except in patients with impaired consciousness, followed by the administration of activated charcoal to absorb any remaining drug. If vomiting is unsuccessful, or contraindicated, gastric lavage should be performed with normal saline. Saline cathartics may also be of value for rapid dilution of bowel contents. Loratadine is not eliminated by hemodialysis. It is not known if loratadine is eliminated by peritoneal dialysis.

No deaths occurred at oral doses up to 5000 mg/kg in rats and mice (greater than 2400 and 1200 times, respectively, the maximum recommended human daily oral dose on a mg/m² basis). Single oral doses of loratadine showed no effects in rats, mice, and monkeys at doses as high as 10 times the maximum recommended human daily oral dose on a mg/m² basis.

Prime Time's Search for

GOBLIN

How spiritual is television? Has God been consigned to the margins—relegated to obscure cable channels and early Sunday mornings? Does morality always take a backseat to action, angst, and adultery? TV GUIDE set out to find God in prime time: We talk to 10 influential thinkers about television's relationship with religion, rediscover soulful shows from our past, celebrate moments of insight in recent seasons, sit down with the stars of TV's groundbreaking series Touched by an Angel, and share the results of our extensive survey of Americans' opinions about television and its potential for a spiritual awakening.

A Pulitzer prize-winning author explores whether religion can become a major force in prime-time television he restores Ganesha to his place of honor.

This episode is primarily about immigration and ethnic tension, of course, and only secondarily about religion, suggesting that a man should not abandon his faith just to fit in socially. The question that needs to be asked is whether this secondary subject—sticking to your religious faith under social pressure—can become a primary subject. Until now, this has been the sort of topic dealt with only in a few programs written and produced by religious organizations. Is it now, as the saying goes, "ready for prime time"?

The answer is a resounding maybe. In prime-time dramas—particularly the character-driven shows with cutting-edge writing like ER, The X-Files, Chicago Hope, NYPD Blue, and Homi-

God on prime-time television is like God in American culture: submerged most of the time, emerging only as a guest star whose appearance is rarely announced.

Religion is a subject that Americans generally take pretty seriously. Television, though, may be most comfortable taking it lightly: It often glosses over the spiritual lives of characters—when was the last time anyone on Drew Carey, Friends, or Nash Bridges went to church or synagogue?—or uses religion as a comic element, as in Seinfeld when George considers converting to Latvian Orthodox for a woman he likes.

Even in a show like The Simpsons, which regularly weaves religion into its storylines, God is never more than an ensemble cast member. In one episode, for example, Apu, the Indian-born manager of the Kwik-E-Mart, packs away his little shrine to Ganesha, Hinduism's god of worldly wisdom, because he wants to seem 100 percent American. But as Ganesha sits forlornly on a back shelf of the storeroom, Apu is overcome by remorse. The story comes to a happy end when Apu discovers that he can be both Indian and American, and cide—faith figures somewhat more frequently than it does in comedy. After all, medical and cop shows thrive on life-and-death dramas, often throwing God into the mix to bring a crisis to a boil. On ER, in an episode entitled “Fear of Flying,” for example, the cocky Dr. Benton is suddenly left in charge of an operation on a 10-month-old infant.

When the baby begins to bleed, Benton disregards his supervisor’s strict instructions—with dire consequences. As the episode ends, we see him gazing at the baby, whose life now hangs in the balance. “The Lord is my shepherd,” he murmurs as scene fades out. Is he losing his faith or rather, just at that moment, finding it? The ambiguity of God’s presence heightens the drama in an already dramatic scene.

A crisis of faith, in fact, seems to be prime-time TV’s preferred way of dealing with the issue of religion. On Homicide, for example, Det. Frank Pembleton has spent the last few seasons warring with God. A lapsed Catholic, Frank’s already fragile faith was punneled when he suffered a near-fatal stroke. It was further bruised when his wife, tired of living in his soulless world, took their daughter and left him. In a recent episode, entitled “Kaddish,” Pembleton and his colleague, Det. John Munch, a lapsed Jew, both struggle in the face of murder investigations to understand what they have lost in turning away from God. The show handled the issue with taste and intelligence, and demonstrated that even when religion is no more than part of the background, it can suddenly come sharply into focus, like the face of Christ crucified that Frank contemplates in an empty church. But the fact remains that even on this program, faith in God, besides being presented as loss of faith, is a secondary theme.

Granted, religion is not an easy subject to handle. It reaches deep into our sense of self, and there are as many different experiences of faith as there are people in the world. Television writers and producers have reason to fear the repercussions of bungling it as the main theme of a show. But they can take heart from polls showing that millions who regularly view prime-time TV, and many more who do not, are eager to see them tackle this subject. Writers and producers should realize that people are eager for TV to reflect their spiritual lives. And advertisers should be reminded that many, many millions of people—including upscale ones with lots of disposable income—go to church. So if television can rise to the challenge, there’s a huge market of religious viewers to tap into.

Some philosophers of religion say that if you can imagine faith, you have it, and, conversely, when you can no longer imagine it, you have lost it. It would be something of a personal gamble for a TV writer to treat religion with complete seriousness. But the extraordinary success of all kinds of religious literature in recent years—not to mention the huge ratings of the show Touched by an Angel—suggests that a mass audience may be ready and waiting for those willing to take that gamble. If and when God finds the writer-producer team He is looking for, He may go from guest star to superstar overnight. ■

Jack Miles, professor of humanities at the Claremont Graduate School, is the author of the best-selling God: A Biography.

Getting Religion

Prime time may be a secular landscape, but it has moments of faith, hope, and redemption

BY MARK LASSWELL AND ED WEINER

Promised Land

If TV is beginning to experience a spiritual revival, then CBS's Touched by an Angel and its spin-off, Promised Land, are devout evangelists. In a two-part PL this season, ex-con Julie (Delta Burke, right, with series star and husband Gerald McRaney) longs to see the boy she gave up for adoption but dreads revealing herself as his mother. "What if he hates me?" Julie asks visiting angel Monica (Roma Downey). Monica's counsel: Just as God offers his love without reservation, a mother's job is simply to let her son know she loves him. Producer Martha Williamson hopes her one-hour homilies are ecumenical. "I've never believed that God was a specific denomination."

MONTY BRINTON/CBS

Homicide: Life on the Street

Even the most gruesome urban carnage can't unsettle Homicide's hardened detectives. But on a recent episode of the NBC series, two rather routine DOAs wobble detectives Frank Pembleton (Andre Braugher) and John Munch (Richard Belzer, below). Pembleton, a lapsed Catholic, ponders an elderly woman who died smiling with a rosary nearby. Munch pursues the murderer of a Jewish woman he adored in high school, which prompts him to warily test his own Judaism. Neither cop experiences an epiphany by show's end. "Finding God is an ongoing adventure," says executive producer Tom Fontana. "To happily resolve that in an hour would trivialize the struggle."

NBC

The view of religion in the syndicated Babylon 5 isn't exactly conventional—after all, the show's creative force, J. Michael Straczynski, is an atheist—but in its second-season finale, "The Fall of Night," the series posed some of the most profound questions about the Supreme Being in TV memory: What do we see—what do we want to see, what do we think we ought to see, what are we culturally and genetically conditioned to see—when we think we're gazing upon God? In the episode, Captain Sheridan (Bruce Boxleitner) throws himself out into the middle of the space station to escape an assassination attempt. The Vorlon ambassador Kosh (voiced by Ardwight Chamberlain), removes his protective suit and floats up to rescue Sheridan. Without his suit, Kosh looks to witnesses like a hovering creature of light (above)—an angel or God, with each witness seeing him differently. Says Straczynski, "I think that TV has an obligation to deal with larger issues than 'Will they get the bank robber in time?' The problem with television is too many answers and not damn near enough questions."

©1996 WARNER BROS. TV

Living Single

The Fox sitcom cast prays together before the taping of each episode, and the show is not afraid to deal with devotion. In a recent show, Khadijah (Queen Latifah, above with T.C. Carson), attends church services after a two-year absence. Her nervousness about returning is played for plenty of laughs, but the show's real message is quite sincere: Spirituality is a matter of the heart and soul, not statuary and stained glass. "I hope that episode encouraged some people to get back to the church," says executive producer Yvette Lee Bowser. "After all, it doesn't matter how often you go but that you keep God at the center of your life."

Star Trek: Deep Space Nine

After decades of Trekian flirtation with religious topics, the syndicated DS9 series has gone where no Trek has gone before: overtly exploring the nature of divinity. This season, Captain Sisko (Avery Brooks), who had been proclaimed "Emissary" after appearing to fulfill a Bajoran religious prophecy, is challenged for the title when a contender surfaces. It is left to a group of holy beings to determine the true Emissary. The Star Trek franchise "has always stayed away from religion," says co-executive producer Ronald D. Moore. "But once you take the traditional labels off and just say 'Bajorans,' you can explore the moral gray areas a lot more easily."

Chicago Hope

A moral dilemma: What if you were a doctor who could save the life of a sick person, but the patient refused treatment on religious grounds? What if that patient were your father? This was the ethical conundrum the crafty writers of CBS's Chicago Hope threw in the path of cardiothoracic surgeon Kate Austin (Christine Lahti, below) last year: her unbending trust in rational science ("Medicine is my faith, my religion") versus her father's unyielding belief in Christian Science and the power of prayer ("God can heal me"). Ultimately, even after the courts had declared him legally incompetent, freeing Austin to go ahead with the operation, the doctor respected her father's wishes and watched with anxious passivity as his prayers—and hers—went unanswered. "Nobody said, 'Let's explore religion,'" says Chicago Hope executive producer Bill D'Elia. "But it's difficult to run a medical show and not deal with issues of God and religion. Each and every week, you're dealing with healers who believe they can prolong life and make it better. The very nature of their profession touches on issues of God."

NYPD Blue

Even for the blunt and frequently profane Andy Sipowicz, they were harsh words: bellowing at a priest that God "can kiss my ass." Of course, Andy (Dennis Franz, above left) was in the middle of a tragic trial that would daunt even Job: the barroom shooting of his son. That senseless death plunged the volatile cop into a turbulent, emotional search for faith in a world he knew firsthand was filled with godless horrors. Over two seasons, in several unforgettable episodes, ABC's NYPD Blue has examined Andy's pain and grief through a religious prism. The set pieces were riveting: Sipowicz confronting the priest in tortured anguish, falling off the wagon, jeopardizing his life with his new family, and praying to God to protect both of his children during his infant son's baptism. In a surprisingly mystical climax, he met up with the dead Andy Jr. and Jesus (in the guise of a truck driver sipping coffee in a diner) during two sad and violent dreams that brought Sipowicz the only kind of peace he can know—temporary and fragile. "In the dreams, Christ speaks in Sipowicz's language, using some obscene words as he tells Sipowicz, 'I told you what to do: Speak through me,'" says executive producer David Milch. "Christ is the part of Sipowicz's consciousness that tells him that, in forgiving himself, he will find the ability to part with his son."

Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman

TV has always loved miracles, especially around Christmastime: Put a character in impossible straits and then rescue him after a stirring affirmation of faith. In this season's holiday episode "Season of Miracles," CBS's Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman, gave this familiar formula a subversive twist: What if the miracle never occurs? When the town's reverend goes blind just before Christmas, prayers and medicines don't bring his sight back, leading to a crisis of faith for both the reverend and the doctor. "Cures don't always come," says producer-writer Carl Binder. "What we settled on was that the miracle is not in the cure but in finding the strength to accept what has happened."

Beverly Hills, 90210

Sometimes, people helping others find faith can stumble upon their own. Earlier this season on Fox's Beverly Hills, 90210, Kelly (Jennie Garth, above) had a spiritual revelation when she encouraged her AIDS-ravaged friend Jimmy to re-embrace his Jewishness. When he died, Kelly even intoned the mourner's Kaddish, the Jewish prayer of remembrance for the dead. "She brought him back to his religion," explains executive producer Jessica Klein. "We thought that it was important that we have a link from him to God."

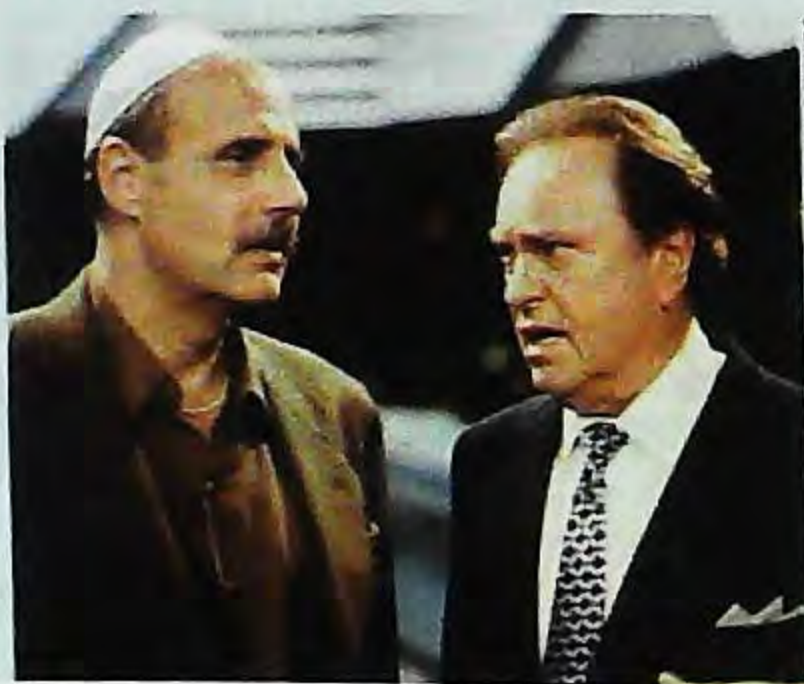

The X-Files

A satanic hit man stalks a boy with authentic stigmata. It sounded like the plot of a macabre horror movie, but Fox's The X-Files recently used the story to explore issues of faith and doubt. Ironically, the usually credulous Mulder (David Duchovny) rejects the divine explanation, while coolly skeptical Scully (Gillian Anderson, above) is drawn to it. "I think faith informs almost every episode," says creator Chris Carter. "I'm a skeptic who desperately wants some reason to believe."

The Larry Sanders Show

This HBO talk-show satire has exploded every other kind of piety, so why not the God-fearing kind? Hank (Jeffrey Tambor, below with Rip Torn) rediscovered his Jewish heritage this season, wearing a yarmulke and quoting the Talmud on-air, and forced the ratings worshipers around him to deal with genuine belief. Sort of genuine. Hank's fervor cooled when a female rabbi nixed his romantic advances. "The show wasn't making light of religion," notes Tambor. "It was making light of Hank."

7th Heaven

When an arsonist torches an African-American church, its minister (Dorian Harewood) and his family are offered refuge in the home of Rev. Camden (Stephen Collins, below with Harewood). That act of kindness forces Camden's congregation to confront ugly issues of racism—an ideal storyline for the new WB series, which tries to be humanistic, not preachy. "You could talk about it with your family afterward," says series creator Brenda Hampton, "and the kids might learn something."

Early Edition

God works in mysterious ways, like giving Gary Hobson (Kyle Chandler) his daily newspaper 24 hours before the rest of the world so he can intervene to prevent calamities. And when Gary has needed help—for instance, when he was trapped by a building's collapse—a mysterious paper-fetching cat has padded to his rescue. Divine intervention? Executive producer Bob Brush prefers to leave the CBS series' religious stance murky. "There is no question that some kind of force clearly steers events, but we specifically stay away from identifying what the nature of the spirituality is." ■

GOD AND TELEVISION

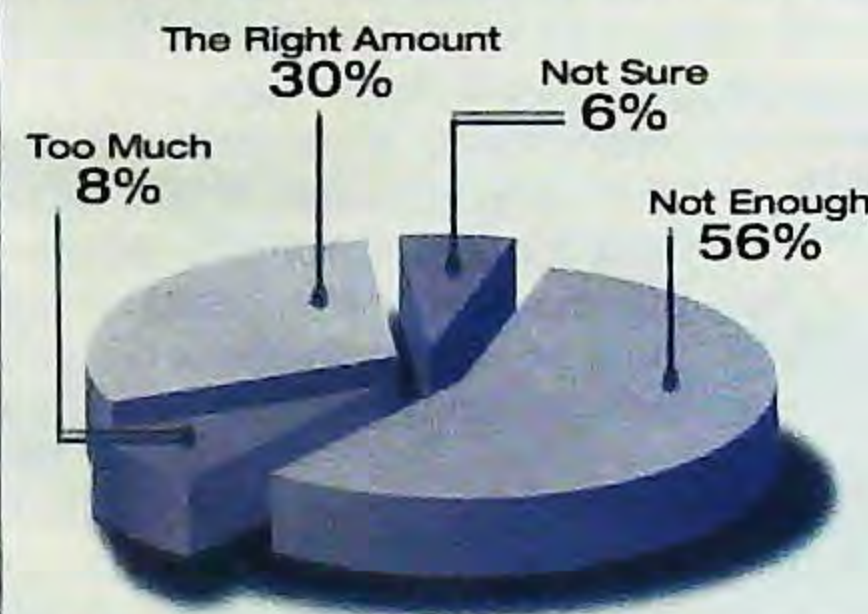

Tuning In to God

A TV GUIDE poll reveals just how deeply today's viewers are yearning for more prime-time piety

BY JOANNE KAUFMAN

Americans, it can be safely said, watch television religiously. But when it comes to prime-time viewing, people don't believe there's very much of a religious nature to watch. That's what TV GUIDE learned when it recently commissioned a poll—the first of its kind—to examine viewers' attitudes about religion and spirituality both in their own lives and in prime-time entertainment programming. Indeed, almost 20 percent of those surveyed expressed surprise that religion and spirituality played any role whatsoever in prime time.

How much attention does religion get on prime-time TV?

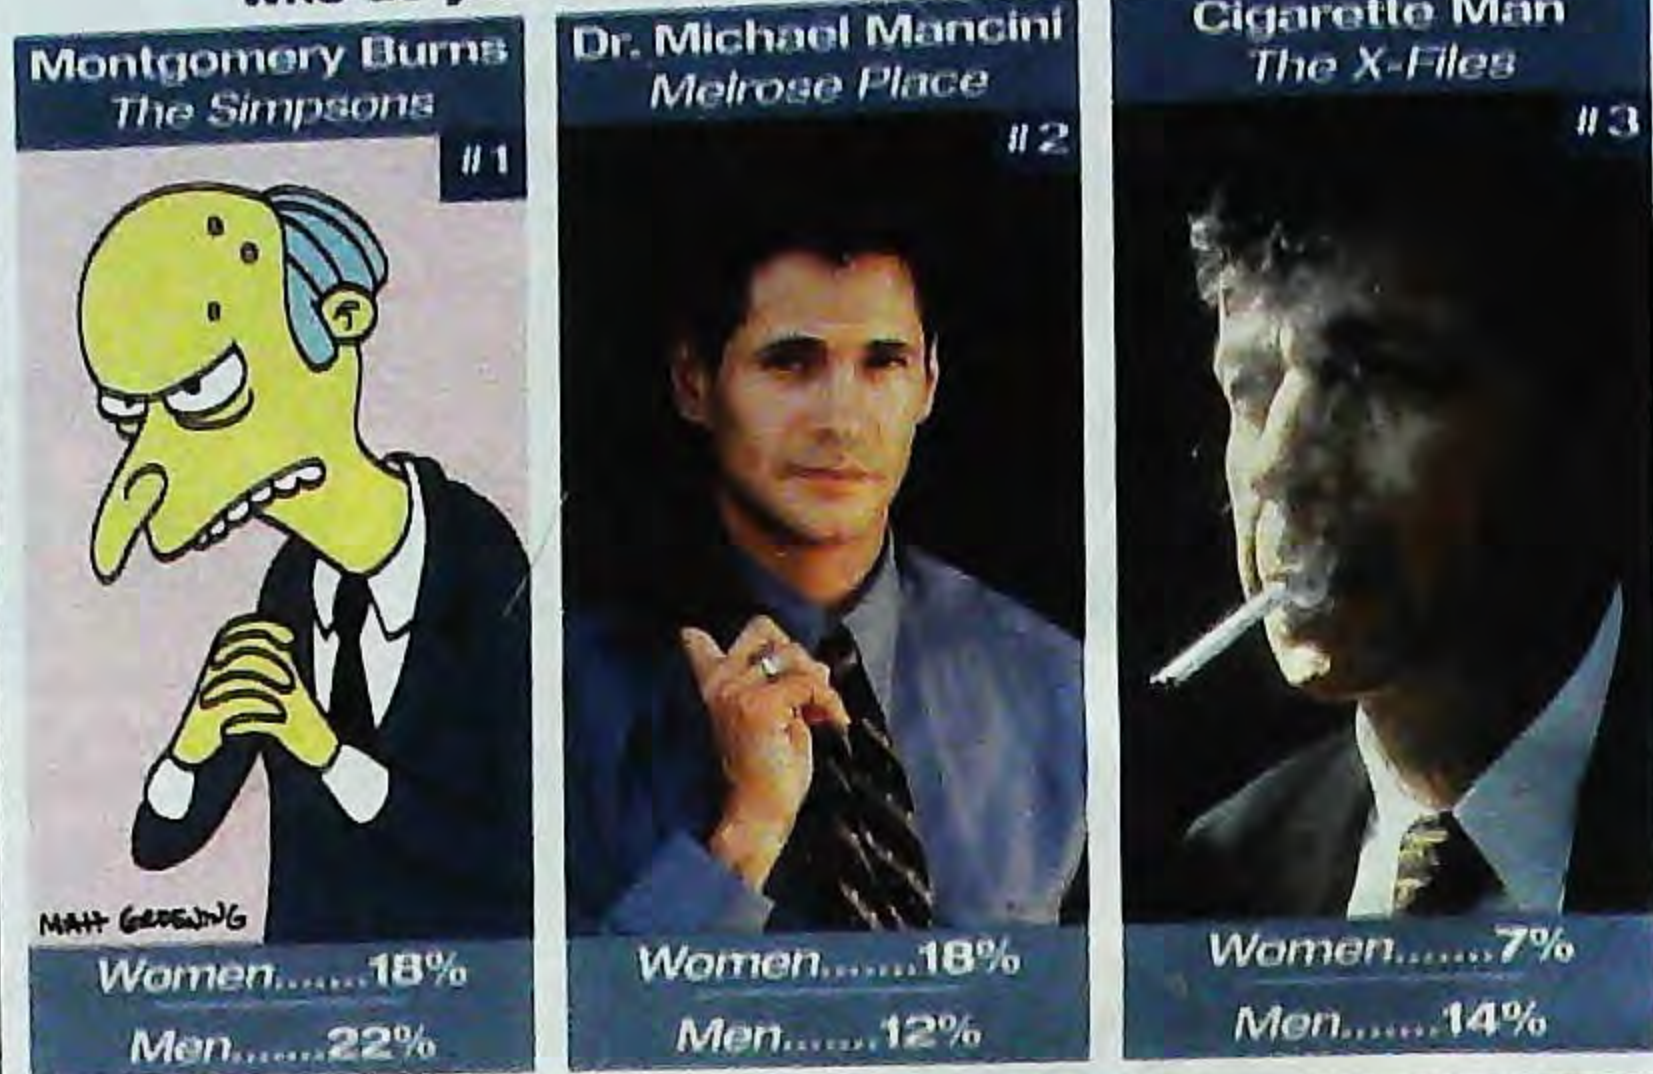

About the Poll

TV GUIDE's survey, an exclusive national telephone poll of 804 adults, was conducted February 21 and 22, 1997, by Peter D. Hart Research Associates of Washington, D.C. The survey has a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percent. Additional findings from the poll will be published in future issues of TV GUIDE.

What about those occasions when prime time does tackle religion? Well, more than half of the respondents felt that television does the job respectfully—that is to say, not offensively. But there's a difference between being respectful and being effective, and that's where those questioned felt TV showed its weak side: Only a third of those questioned thought prime time successfully depicts characters' religious sides.

We may not see much religion on TV, but many Americans make it a part of their daily lives. More than half of those surveyed classified themselves as either fairly religious or very religious, and 41 percent of respondents said they went to church or synagogue at least once a week. Perhaps that's why 61 percent of the respondents said that they'd like to see more references to God, churchgoing, and other religious observances in prime time, and why 68 percent were particularly eager to see more prime-time spirituality. (We defined spirituality as a belief in a higher being, but not necessarily an affiliation with a particular organized religion.) But even more than prayer, respondents wanted principles: A whopping 82 percent said they would like to see more references to moral issues on television.

From a list of prime time's most notorious evil-doers, who do you think is most likely to go to hell?

Americans may know what they want, but they don't expect to get it. No one seems to hold out much hope that TV's relationship with God will improve anytime soon. In fact, most think it's been steadily deteriorating. Almost three-quarters of those who participated in the poll believe that in the last five years prime time has increasingly become a less moral, spiritual, and religious universe. Even those claiming to have no religious affiliation have taken note of the decline: More than half of non-believers say prime time has gotten less religious. Overall, 61 percent of those polled say TV has gotten less spiritual, and less moral, in the past five years.

Which of the Ten Commandments do you think is most often violated on prime-time television?

Do not commit adultery	32%
Do not kill	30
Do not take the Lord's name in vain	8
Do not covet your neighbor's wife	7
Honor your mother and father	5
Do not bear false witness	3
Do not steal	2
Do not covet your neighbor's possessions	2
Worship only the Lord	2
Observe the holy days	less than 1

A big part of the problem, no doubt, is all those morally, spiritually, and religiously challenged characters running around in prime time. They lie, they cheat, they steal, they take the Lord's name in vain, generally behaving as though the Ten Commandments were the Ten Suggestions. Which commandments are most often flouted? Adultery and murder topped pretty much everyone's list. All this messing around may explain why, when asked to rate the morality of the prime-time population, respondents handed down an average rating of 46 out of a possible 100. When asked to evaluate their own morals, however, respondents gave themselves an uplifting score of 85 out of 100.

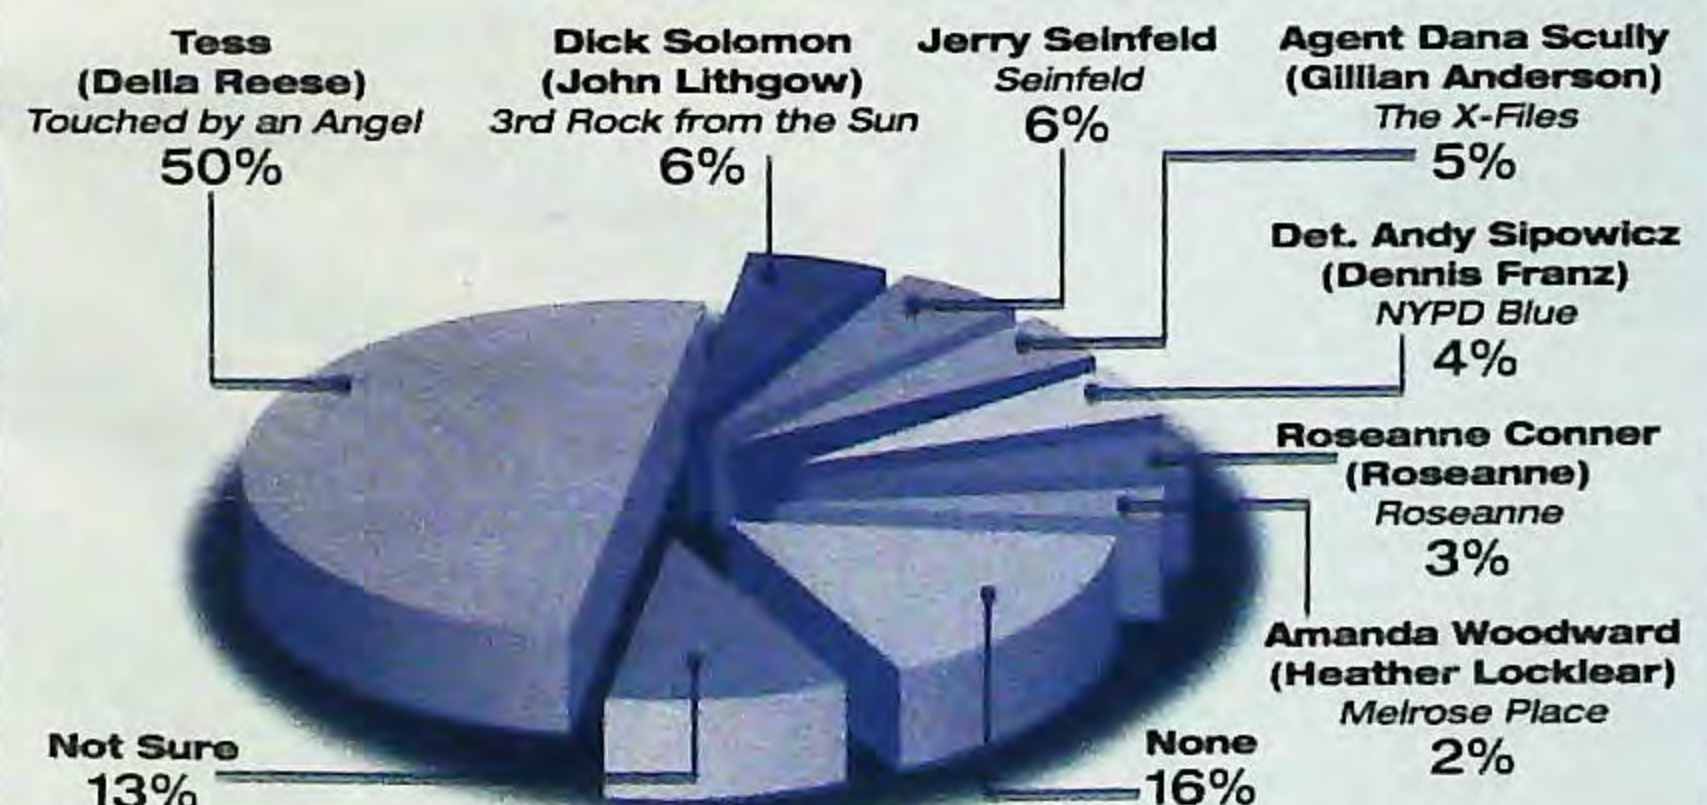

Perhaps viewers have learned where to find guidance, maybe even redemption, or perhaps they simply know whose example to follow. When asked to choose the most spiritually rich prime-time program, an impressive 66 percent of the respondents praised the CBS drama Touched by an Angel, with ABC's wholesome TGIF standard Family Matters a very distant second, collecting a mere 6 percent of the vote.

And what TV character would folks most like to hunker down with for a chat about the existence of God? Unsurprisingly, the amen corner was crowded with Angel fans. Almost half those questioned chose Della Reese's Tess as the perfect partner with whom to ponder a higher power, though women were twice as likely as men to want to talk to her. Jerry Seinfeld was the second most popular conversationalist, attracting 10 percent of those polled, but more men than women wanted to kick around the topic with his savvy, urban character.

Programs like the popular Touched by an Angel may help explain why viewers continue to keep the faith about prime time. More than half of the respondents with children say they watch TV as a family and that watching together brings them closer. And soon they may have more wholesome fare to choose from: Perhaps inspired by the success of Touched by an Angel, recently rated the No. 1 drama, Hollywood now has at least four new shows about angels, spirits, and ministers in the pipeline for next season. ■

You Gotta Have FAITH

Ten prominent spiritual thinkers reflect on TV's treatment of God and religion

BY ILEANE RUDOLPH

Rev. Robert H. Schuller

Ecumenical TV minister, host of the syndicated Hour of Power, and author of If It's Going to Be, It's Up to Me

With the advent of global television, the old boundaries set up by indoctrinated minds of different faiths don't hold anymore. But before religion is allowed to board TV, it should pass three security checks. The first is, Does it build faith? The second: Can it inspire hope? It must not contribute to the cynicism, despair, or negativity that is seemingly part of human nature. The third: Does it generate love, which we define as recognizing that people deserve to be addressed with dignity and respect? Faith, hope, and love are the three nonnegotiable values necessary in the communication process.

Father Andrew Greeley

Professor of social sciences at the University of Chicago and the University of Arizona, and author of Irish Lace and White Smoke

TV's job is to represent life, and religion is an important part of human life. It's a form of censorship to ignore religion, which TV generally does. The Star Trek series sometimes deals with spiritual matters, and Touched by an Angel certainly is explicitly religious. It's sentimental, sure, but there is room for that. One hopes that there would be room for more-sophisticated projects, as well. TV can be a part of a spiritual education. Films like "Babette's Feast" deal with religion in a significant way and don't offend people. Faith is certainly handled in movies, so why not on television?

Sarah Ban Breathnach

Author of Simple Abundance: A Daybook of Comfort and Joy

Television is our communal campfire and we're hungering for stories that inspire us. Our souls are nourished by the simple things—making a meal, kissing your daughter on the top of her head, arranging flowers. If more ordinary moments were featured on television, we would start to see the mystical in the mundane. Television is a spiritual gift. Anytime you can communicate to millions of people it's a spiritual gift. TV is getting better; the creative decision makers, and their corporate bosses who base everything on the bottom line, realize that people want authentic stories. We do have a long way to go, but the journey's begun and it's very exciting.

Thomas Moore

Author of Care of the Soul and The Re-enchantment of Everyday Life; he is a former Catholic monk Nurturing the soul does not mean telling people the right path to clarity and success. It's more about helping them sort out the issues involved. A real moment of transcendent television for me is comedy. Comedians are like priests in a way; they break apart all the pieties, all those things that we hold to be more sacred than we should. They turn things upside down, and that's a terribly important spiritual activity. When the comedy is pure and free of cynicism, then it serves a very important purpose: nourishing the soul.

James Redfield

Author of The Celestine Prophecy, which is scheduled to be made into a four-hour miniseries on CBS next season

When it comes to spirituality, prime-time TV should focus on direct experience—how it feels, how it affects people's lives—but without pushing one religious orientation over another. It's important that, on television, stories about spiritual matters are told from a realistic perspective, because the culture is shifting from abstract belief to actual experience of the spiritual in one's life. We're seeing a lot of documentaries and shows about angel interventions, and that reflects the culture's sense that angels are real entities and have some kind of relationship with human beings.

Rabbi Harold Kushner

Author of When Bad Things Happen to Good People and How Good Do We Have to Be?

Prime-time dramas are the natural place to deal with questions of faith. I applaud NYPD Blue for bringing in issues of anger and forgiveness in the episode where Sipowicz dreams of his son coming back to life, accompanied by a man who turns out to be Jesus. I would rather see a character with a specific religion, even if it doesn't happen to be mine—someone named Sipowicz has every right to be specifically Christian. Unfortunately, TV tends to go for the least common denominator, to be more concerned with not offending large numbers of fairly unsophisticated viewers than not disappointing a handful of more-thoughtful religious ones, the kind who do not melt at the appearance of angels.

Elaine Pagels

Professor of religion at Princeton University and author of The Origin of Satan

JERRY BAUER

Religion has been taboo as a prime-time TV topic—advertisers have long worried about offending people—but it's finally coming out of the closet, perhaps because it's increasingly in public conversation in a way that it was not a generation ago. We can talk about religion now because we've lost the sense that presenting such material is an attempt to sell it, to convert someone to a point of view. And that's good, because dealing with religion on television could suggest to people who struggle with questions about spirituality that they're not alone.

Robert Coles

Child psychiatrist and Pulitzer prize-winning author of The Spiritual Life of Children

M.J. SHARP/NEW YORK TIMES

I'm all for some effort to help viewers understand religious and spiritual matters by adapting great stories from great writers like Leo Tolstoy, Flannery O'Connor, Walker Percy, or John Cheever for TV. I'll bet that can be done on commercial television. The viewing capacity of audiences is often underestimated. Look what happened with "Schindler's List": It had enormous moral energy and so many people watched it. TV can and does have a role in America's spirituality. Of course, no program is going to be effective if it tries to indoctrinate people. But TV shows can deal with the universal questions, such as, What does life mean? How should you live it?

Jack Canfield

Coauthor of Chicken Soup for the Soul, which is being developed into an upcoming ABC special Prime-time TV is indeed the prime time to reach people. But the majority of shows seem to be full of sarcasm and violence. That distorts people's perception of society so that they lose faith not only in God but in each other and in themselves. We need programming that uplifts people, that focuses on triumph over adversity rather than on conflict, programming that shows people coming from true religious values—love, inclusion, acceptance, tolerance—not from dogma. What this country needs to focus on right now is coming together both racially and religiously, so God should be shown in a wide variety of religious perspectives.

Rev. Peter J. Gomes

Professor of Christian morals at Harvard University and author of The Good Book: Reading the Bible with Mind and Heart

I don't think, as many conservative clergymen do, that television is by nature antagonistic to religion. I think TV recognizes religion as a problematic area into which it doesn't want to step unless absolutely necessary. But the big story is that religion is not necessarily driven by conflict. There are people for whom religion is not a negative or fearful reaction to the world or to difference, but for whom it's the defining experience of life. People are devout Jews; people are observant Catholics. If TV wants to be a serious contributor to culture, it ought to reflect that and find a way to deal with religion. ■

A Spiritual Journey

A look back at some of the soulful shows that have graced the prime-time airwaves

By Rick Schindler

1951: Amahl and the Night Visitors TV's first commercial color broadcast was Hallmark's Christmas Eve presentation of an opera about the wise men, composed expressly for television by Gian Carlo Menotti.

1952-68: Bishop Sheen Winner of a 1952 Emmy, Roman Catholic bishop Fulton J. Sheen told viewers Life Is Worth Living for three years on the Dumont network, then for a year and a half on ABC. Sheen illustrated his points on a blackboard and joked about the unseen "angel" who erased them off-camera. From '61 to '68, he returned in his self-titled syndicated show.

1962-63: Going My Way Gene Kelly traded his dancing shoes for priestly garb in TV's version of Bing Crosby's hit 1944 film. It costarred a post-Topper Leo G. Carroll and a pre-Bewitched Dick York.

1965: A Charlie Brown Christmas When Charlie Brown bemoans the commercialization of Christmas, Linus responds by quoting the Gospel of Matthew in this first ever Peanuts special.

1965-66: The Smothers Brothers Show Before they became the bad boys of prime time with their controversial variety show, the bros foreshadowed Highway to Heaven in a sitcom in which Tom played a bungling angel-in-training.

1967-70: The Flying Nun We liked, we really liked, Sally Field as a young novice nun who picked up the habit of gliding on the air currents above Puerto Rico.

1972-73: Bridget Loves Bernie The honeymoon was brief for this sitcom about Bernie Steinberg and his Irish Catholic bride, Bridget, played by David Birney and Meredith Baxter.

1977: Lanigan's Rabbi was amateur crime-solver David Small (Bruce Solomon); Lanigan himself, a small-town police chief, was played by Art Carney.

1978: In the Beginning McLean Stevenson as a pompous priest. One of his several short-lived series after *M*A*S*H*, it lasted less than a month. Call it Not Going My Way.

1981-84: Father Murphy Before hitting the Highway to Heaven, Michael Landon produced this family drama starring once-fearsome linebacker Merlin Olsen as a gentle frontiersman running an orphanage in the guise of a priest.

1983: The Thorn Birds As Father Ralph, Richard Chamberlain got hot under the collar for Rachel Ward—and viewers tuned in to the steamy saga in record numbers.

1984-89: Highway to Heaven In which apprentice angel Michael Landon blazed the sky trail so successfully flown by Roma Downey today.

1985: Hell Town Robert Blake made one tough-talking ex-convict priest. Father Baretta, if you will.

1986-91: Amen After The Jeffersons, Sherman Hemsley went movin' on up to the role of an egotistical Philadelphia deacon. Adding verisimilitude as a young reverend was Clifton Davis, an ordained minister in real life.

1989-91: Father Dowling Mysteries If Lanigan's rabbi could solve crimes, Chicago priest Father Frank Dowling (Tom Bosley) was not to be outdone—particularly when assisted by street-savvy Sister Steve (Tracy Nelson).

1994: Heaven Help Us After dying in a plane crash on their honeymoon, former Duke of Hazzard John Schneider and Melinda Clarke became two more of TV's legion of apprentice angels—with Ricardo Montalban as their tutor.

1995: Amazing Grace Narrowly escaping death, a recovering drug addict becomes a minister in this short-lived drama starring Patty Duke.

Angels & Insights

The creator and stars of one of America's favorite shows tell how they keep Touched by an Angel, well, heavenly

BY DANIEL HOWARD CERONE

Touched by an Angel executive producer Martha Williamson believes that angels are sent to earth by God to help those at a spiritual crossroads. By that definition, series stars Roma Downey, John Dye, and Della Reese (an ordained minister) seem to qualify as angels—thousands of fans have written in to say they've been deeply affected by the show. And they have made CBS's Touched by an Angel TV's second-highest-rated drama, behind ER. Never has prime-time network entertainment presented God in such an unabashed and earnest fashion, with the angels guiding lost souls from the wilderness every Sunday night (8 P.M./ET), always reminding them that God loves them.

Are these actors just delivering lines? Or are they spreading God's word? Williamson and the series' stars had never sat down to compare notes on the subject—until TV GUIDE brought them together to talk in Salt Lake City, where the show films.

TV GUIDE: Some 69 percent of Americans say that they believe in the existence of angels. What is an angel?

Roma Downey: A messenger of God. That's how it's translated.

Della Reese: An angel doesn't necessarily come with wings or a halo. In my life, it has been someone who has been there when I needed them. Sometimes I knew them. Sometimes I knew them only for a half hour.

John Dye: And the timing is such that you just know it can't be coincidental.

Martha Williamson: Biblically, angels bring messages. They bring comfort. They can bring protection. They don't heal, but they can bring healing from God. Those are the four things the angels do on our show. We also took the idea that you never know if you are entertaining an angel.

Reese: The scripture says, "Be careful who you turn away from your door, because it might be an angel unaware."

TVG: John, you were added last season as an angel of death, who appears when someone's dying, but your character's not dark.

Dye: When Martha first approached me about doing this, we agreed that there wasn't going to be any great grim reaper sort of thing. Death is the next step. It's the better step. My character has the responsibility of escorting somebody home to God.

Williamson: One of my favorite lines is from the episode "Random Acts," when John leans over a dying man and says, "Don't be afraid, because on this side there is life, and on the other side, there is life, too."

Downey: I had an extraordinary experience—I actually went to a funeral with John Dye.

Dye: Talk about stopping the room. Whoa! There was an audible intake of breath when I came in. When I leave the set, I forget there are 23 million people who watch this show. You can imagine what happens when I enter an airplane.

Reese: They relate to me on airplanes: "I know this flight is gonna be all right because we got an angel on board."

TVG: As an actor, when you say, "God loves you," do you have to believe that line to say it?

Dye: When I was first approached, I thought, "Am I really going to get on TV every week and talk about God?" That's a big, big responsibility. But I have never read one of our scripts and gone, "I just can't. This is not my ideology."

Reese: I am not only saying what Martha wrote; I am saying what I believe and what I live by.

Williamson: We all believe in what we are doing, and that's why people keep watching. If the angels on our show floated around, wiggled their noses, and granted wishes, we would not still be on the air. This show is not here to glorify angels. Maybe that was CBS's intention. It ain't what they got. We didn't give it to them, and they are darn happy we didn't.

TVG: Somebody else created the show, and Martha, you were asked to fix it. What were the original elements?

Williamson: The angels were angry people, and they didn't like one another very much.

Reese: Monica [Downey's character] had wings.

Williamson: She also raised a dog from the dead, which I had problems with. First of all, I don't believe angels that have power over death; God does. But more than that, once you raise a dog from the dead in the first episode, what do you do for an encore?

Downey: It had a lot of magic in it. I think it was aimed for a young audience.

TVG: Although now no one has wings, Angel still uses heavy symbolism—allegories, proverbs, some critics could call them platitudes. Do you worry the show will get too heavy-handed?

Williamson: I think it can be mistaken for heavy-handed because it's so powerful. People are uncomfortable with that sort of flat-out power.

TVG: The show has also been called simplistic.

Williamson: To which I reply "Good!" Because if God isn't simple and easy for everybody, then He is for no one. What comes down to on our show is God's truth.

TVG: What is God's truth?

Williamson: God exists. God loves us. God wants to be part of our lives.

Reese: And he has a plan.

Williamson: The Ten Commandments are a plan to keep you happy, not to make you miserable. One of the best moments was when Della grabbed the Bible out of a man's hand and said: "Give it to me! You can't hide behind this!" And that is what goes on all the time. People use the Bible to their own ends.

TVG: When you represent God on the show, is it the god of Christians? Jews? Muslims?

Reese: We don't talk about that. We talk about a Supreme Being, who loves us all. Religion is a man-made thing. We deal in spirituality. That's a God thing.

Downey: I grew up in [Northern Ireland], where people kill each other in the name of religion. I went through a crisis of faith, essentially, because of the lack of separation between church and state. If you are Catholic, it will suggest—dictate, really—that you think one thing, and vice versa if you are Protestant. This show was appealing to me because there was no mention of religion. This is not a religious show; this is a spiritual show. Anybody who has ever been on any kind of spiritual journey knows there is a very distinct difference.

TVG: How has this show affected your faith?

Reese: It hasn't necessarily affected my spiritual level; it has given me an opportunity to project my spiritual level.

Downey: For me, it reinforces a lot of things. It has made me a better listener. And when I say each week, "God loves you," I remind myself of that.

Dye: I think I have become more patient. I try even harder than is in my nature to see all sides of a dilemma, a problem, a fight. I grew up in the north of Mississippi, very fundamentalist, Bible-thumping, hellfire and brimstone. I went through the same thing. I said, "This cannot be the answer." I never turned away from my faith—it was too much a part of me—but I didn't know how to embrace it. And then this show came along.

TVG: How is Touched by an Angel different from past shows with angels?

Williamson: We take the next step.

We don't treat angels as a fantasy, which most angel shows and movies do. After doing a good deed, the angel disappears into the night, and someone says, "Who was that winged stranger?"

TVG: How is Angel different from Highway to Heaven?

Reese: He [Michael Landon] could fix everything, he and his earthly buddy. They changed a person's life by fixing it. We can't fix it. We give you an opportunity to fix your life. We give you a choice.

Williamson: It's very, very difficult to write. People think it's easy because you have this built-in deus ex machina: God is going to come in and fix everything. That's not true. With any other series, you can have people talk about both sides of any question, and they end with it up in the air. Fade to black. We can't do that. We ultimately have to come to a decision from God's point of view, which is tremendously difficult sometimes.

TVG: Do your writers believe in God?

Williamson: I think we started out with a couple of agnostics. We have had Buddhists, Jews, Catholics, Protestants, almost everything.

Reese: But I don't think you could write those words, sweetheart, if you were an atheist.

TVG: There seems to be a real commercialization of angels in film and TV and books—God sells now.

Reese: He's been selling for years. Maybe you weren't aware of it. God can sell it. Oh, yes.

TVG: But now people are selling God, and there's a difference.

Williamson: One of the reasons I believe angels are so popular today is because angels are nonthreatening. So you get angel cookbooks and home decorations, and it becomes an angel religion instead of what it's really about.

Dye: If we are being as brazen as to invoke the name of God on TV, if we're doing it poorly, I just don't think God would bless the show and allow it to continue. ■

Queens-born Debi Mazar has made a career out of playing New Yorkers with attitude—not exactly a stretch

BY HILARY DE VRIES

Her fingernails are a scary dragon-lady red, and she will be the first to point out that her head is so large it's only an inch smaller than her waist—"21 inches versus 22"—but Debi Mazar's eyebrows are to die for. "I don't wax; I tweeze," explains Mazar, who was once an in-demand makeup artist for such celebrities as Madonna and Andy Warhol. "I've actually been bumped up to first class by stewardesses going, 'Oh, can you pluck my eyebrows?'"

That's hardly your typical Hollywood story, but then Mazar's not your typical star. Ever since the beauty-school graduate took up acting a decade ago, she's turned in well-received performances in nearly two dozen films, including "Good-Fellas," "Bullets Over Broadway," and "Batman Forever." She has also logged time on ABC's Civil Wars and NBC's L.A. Law, winning fans playing the lovably brassy secretary Denise Iannello on both shows. Now Mazar has vaulted from second banana to bona fide star, playing Deb DeAngelo, the scene-stealing, seen-it-all-before temp worker on CBS's Temporarily Yours.

"I never really wanted to do sitcoms," says the 32-year-old Mazar, whose sweetly tough delivery is half Betty Boop, half Donald Trump. "I had a nice little thing going with my movie career." But her Civil Wars-L.A. Law character was so popular, she was offered a TV deal. "I knew I'd be a fool not to explore doing my own series."

It looks like the gamble may be paying off. The series, which costars Joanna Gleason (Love & War) as the stuffy owner of the temp agency, debuted earlier this month to largely glowing reviews—though few failed to note similarities between Mazar's diamond-in-the-rough New Yorker and Fran Drescher's character on The Nanny, which precedes it on CBS on Wednesday nights. The ratings have been promising as well.

"Debi held onto 100 percent of [The Nanny's] numbers and no other show, not Almost Perfect, not Pearl, has done that," says CBS Entertainment president Leslie Moonves. "While comparisons to The Nanny are obvious, Deb is really one of a kind. In a personality medium, well, what a personality."

Not that Mazar's return to TV has been a snap. The three-year process of launching the series involved a major overhaul that included replacing creator Michael Patrick King (Cybill). "I got an ulcer making the show," explains Mazar over lunch at her Los Angeles neighborhood trattoria. "I was so tense because I wanted to do something fresh, something that wouldn't make me cringe, and then after we shot the pilot, CBS decided to go with another writer, so that was a million dollars in the garbage can."

"The first pilot was more like a buddy comedy," explains executive producer Vic Rauseo, who was brought on board as producer along with his wife, Linda Morris, after King's departure (the husband-and-wife team had previously produced Frasier). "Now, Deb and Joanna are in conflict all the time," Rauseo says.

Even after the series was retooled, Mazar found the going bumpy. She wanted the series to be "like a movie," and, she says, "I was fought on every level." She balked at using a studio audience and chafed at decisions that ranged from making a gay character straight (Gleason's son, played by Seth Green) to the elaborate set for Deb's apartment. When it came to her acting, Mazar had to adjust. "They kept telling me to make it bigger, but I don't want her to be a cartoon character, I want her to be real."

Brassy

Come Home

More than a little of that realism stems from striking similarities between the Queens-born Mazar, who has "a zillion jobs" on her résumé, and Deb, the Brooklyn-born temp worker who's gone through 27 jobs in two years. "She's more naive than I am," says Mazar, "but we're both blue-collar. In fact, I was almost under blue-collar."

The oldest daughter of a Italian mother, Nancy Cannizzaro, and a Latvian father, Harry Mazar, Debi left home at 15. "We were really poor," she says simply, "and I lived quickly at a young age." With no money to pay for acting school, Mazar found her early career inspiration in her "wild, loud family," especially her grandmother, who swam in the water show at the 1939 New York World's Fair. "She was the only woman who had a full-size swimming pool in Queens," recalls Mazar. "She and her friends would be there in their turbans and bikinis, drinking martinis and diving off the garage into the pool."

Mazar's flair for theatricality found an outlet in New York City's black and Puerto Rican gay club scene. "We were all teenagers trying to be fabulous," she says. To support herself, she worked at a variety of menial jobs. Eventually she enrolled in beauty school.

"I was always very good with hair and makeup," she recalls, "but to cut to the chase, it became very 'All About Eve.'" Doing makeup for such stars as Madonna during her Broadway run in David Mamet's play "Speed-the-Plow," Mazar found herself longing for the limelight: "I knew all their lines, and I would watch from the wings, but my job was done when I put the powder puff down." When she began to study acting, Mazar found performing to be "this release for all those emotions I had never really dealt with."

With her unorthodox looks and hip New York sensibility, Mazar quickly landed film work, and after moving to L.A., she won her role on Civil Wars in 1991.

Today, with Temporarily Yours pushing her profile higher, Mazar's biggest challenge appears to be juggling the various demands of her career. This summer she can be seen in the film "She's De Lovely," with Robin Wright, Sean Penn, and John Travolta. And while CBS initially ordered only six episodes of the sitcom (the last one airs April 9), Moonves says that if the ratings hold, renewal for the fall is likely.

"I definitely still want to make movies," Mazar says, adding that she is also determined not to let success shortchange her personal life. An ardent flea-market shopper, Mazar maintains a New York City apartment and a Los Angeles home both stuffed with her various collections, which range from Lady Schick electric shavers to vintage furniture. She designs many of her clothes and is an accomplished cook. Although Mazar is close-mouthed about her current beau—"he's not an actor" is all she will say—she admits she would like "to be married in the church and raise my kids in the church."

Meanwhile, she adjusts to life as the star of her own series. "I know now why Roseanne and Cybill and all of them get reputations," she says with a shake of her head. "I'm a control freak, but I'm learning." And she still hands out free makeup tips. "You know, your eyebrows are good, but I would extend them," she says, cocking her head. "Shiseido pencil is the best, and believe me, I've tried them all." ■

'ELLEN' FINALLY SAYS...

Yes, I Am

*An exclusive behind-the-scenes
report on how ABC
and Disney allowed
one of their sitcom characters to become TV's first leading lesbian*

BY DANIEL HOWARD CERONE

The ball got rolling quietly enough last summer, when a note was tacked to the bulletin board in the Ellen writers' room with the words: "The Puppy." On the surface, the card looked like all the others suggesting storylines for the coming season. But the writers knew the truth: "The Puppy" was a code name for the episode in which Ellen DeGeneres hoped to make television history by bringing her title character out of the closet.

The groundbreaking one-hour episode, scheduled to air on April 30, was filmed during two Fridays earlier this month, with Ellen Morgan confessing her crush on a new friend (guest star Laura Dern) to a therapist played by Oprah Winfrey. After finishing a hilarious sequence in which Ellen Morgan's newfound sexual orientation is inadvertently broadcast over a loudspeaker to an entire airport terminal, a teary but joyful DeGeneres literally skipped across the stage to the sidelines, where she embraced writers and crew members. "We felt we were witnessing history," said one lesbian who attended with a group of friends.

With the "coming out" episode in the can, it would seem that DeGeneres, who fought hard for the gay storyline, can finally relax. To sweeten the victory, she just negotiated a lucrative deal with Disney's Touchstone Television, which produces Ellen, and purchased a $3 million home on three acres near Beverly Hills. But the biggest battle lies ahead, for it remains to be seen how many viewers will watch the new Ellen and how advertisers and ABC affiliates will react. In what may be her toughest move yet, DeGeneres plans to publicly address questions about her own sexuality around the time the episode airs, sources say. "You have to fulfill that expectation or you're forcing a distinction between public and private," says a top executive at another network. "That's awkward for millions of people who view Ellen DeGeneres and Ellen Morgan as the same person."

Not since Maude tackled abortion in 1972 has a sitcom served as a lightning rod for such intense emotions. Religious groups have threatened ABC advertisers with boycotts, while accusing Disney, which owns ABC, of contradicting its mainstream image. Members of the gay community alternately praised DeGeneres for her courage and criticized her for milking the controversy for attention.

None of this is what DeGeneres intended last summer, when she eagerly told producers she wanted Ellen Morgan to discover she's a lesbian. "It seemed like a very bold idea," recalls Jamie Tarses, president of ABC Entertainment.

After TV GUIDE revealed in September that Ellen might come out of the closet, press attention grew intense. DeGeneres became the toast of the talk shows but coyly never confirmed the report. She even spoofed it on HBO's The Larry Sanders Show. After 13 years as a struggling comic and several seasons on a moderately successful sitcom, DeGeneres appeared poised to have a historic impact on pop culture—until she was put on hold.

Due to lackluster ratings, ABC had already pushed Ellen back from its slot of 8 P.M. to 9:30 P.M./ET on Wednesdays, following the surging Drew Carey Show. Ellen was just building momentum in that time slot when DeGeneres learned early this year that ABC was going to bump her off the schedule altogether in March and April to try out Arsenio Hall's new sitcom. Unfortunately, she heard that information secondhand, when word leaked to her manager.

Survey Says...

By three to one, Americans say that having a gay lead in a prime-time show is a bad idea (37 percent) rather than a good idea (11 percent), although most (46 percent) say it depends on how the issue is handled, according to an exclusive TV GUIDE poll conducted by Peter D. Hart Research Associates. A whopping 63 percent of those familiar with the show say they have little or no interest in watching the episode in which Ellen Morgan announces that she is gay. Of those familiar with the show, only 33 percent express any interest in watching the rest of the season.

Executive producers Dava Savel and Mark Driscoll on breaking a TV taboo

TV GUIDE: Why did you decide to do this storyline?

Mark Driscoll: We all recognized there was something missing at the center of the show.

Dava Savel: And Ellen realized it, too. This was something she really wanted to do.

TVG: Whose idea was it to use Oprah Winfrey as Ellen's therapist?

DS: I suggested Oprah. I think Oprah is a terrific actress. She's so well liked by the American people, it was perfect to have someone like her who connects with Middle America, where if Oprah said it was OK, then it was OK.

TVG: Did you feel a sense of responsibility writing the episode?

MD: Yes, a tremendous sense of responsibility. Responsibility to Ellen, primarily. It's a story she cared very much about.

DS: And it's important for the gay community. We're not looking to make some big role model out of her, but this is something a lot of kids go through. And they don't know where to turn. If this episode helps some child in the Midwest with their sexual identification, we've done our job.

TVG: Why do you think there's interest in Ellen's sexuality?

DS: Even if somebody doesn't like the show, they generally like Ellen DeGeneres. She hosts the Grammys. She's not your regular sitcom star. The fascination is taking someone like that and totally splitting her open. And it's taboo. Her character is not a secondary character. We're taking a well-established, well-liked character who, after four years, says, "Guys, this is the reason I haven't been dating."

TVG: Where will the show go from here?

MD: I'll tell you where it won't go. It won't become the lesbian dating show.

DS: The show following the coming-out episode will be Ellen telling her parents. The last episode of the season, she will deal with her boss. —D.H.C.

An angry DeGeneres walked off the set for a day, then pulled out of a stunt for February sweeps, when ABC's Wednesday-night sitcoms traveled to Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. Ellen writers were forced to write a new script.

Meanwhile, coworkers found DeGeneres—locked in contract negotiations with the studio—increasingly stressed. When her personal assistant suddenly quit, one producer publicly suggested DeGeneres would have a hard time walking her own dogs. For two days after that, DeGeneres made herself scarce around the offices. Someone finally went to her trailer and discovered she was apparently hurt by the comment. "My assistant does more than walk my dogs. My life is more complicated than that," she said.

At times, DeGeneres seemed to be baiting network and studio executives. During one impromptu take while filming in January, she sang, "So here's what I have to say...I'm gay, I'm gay, I'm gay!"→

A Pioneer's Lone Star Roots

A small town expresses pride and outrage over its most famous former resident

As you roll into Atlanta, Texas—the piney-woods town where Ellen DeGeneres came of age as a teenager—you can't help but notice how small the place is: rows of neat frame houses, a few churches, and one gas station deep in the heart of the South—a place that's not far removed from television's Mayberry.

And while many of the townsfolk point to Ellen DeGeneres's accomplishments with pride, others say they are deeply opposed to the upcoming episode where her character announces she's a lesbian.

Barbara Qualls clearly belongs to the pro-Ellen camp. Principal of Atlanta High School, where DeGeneres spent her junior and senior years, Qualls fondly recalls Ellen singing in the chorus and playing for the Rabbits, the varsity tennis team. "She's wonderful. It is so good to be able to tell our kids, 'Look where you can be. Look what can happen to you.'"

But that pride centers on Ellen's success in show business. Quite different emotions are elicited when Atlantans are asked about her character's lesbianism.

"The Bible teaches against it," says Leonard Beene, 78, as he emerges from the First Assembly

Funny girl: DeGeneres's year-book picture, class of '76.

"She wanted to get to the story, and Disney was not being totally supportive. That may have been her way to speed the process along," says one show source. Executives felt no rush to green-light a script, choosing instead to consider the ramifications of making what was sure to be a controversial move. "What made it a difficult decision was the potential reaction in the advertising and affiliate community," says Tarses, "their fear that this would drive people away from the

of God church. Pastor Van Venter believes homosexuality is "demonic. I think the show is part of a diabolical plan to drag down society." Barbie Weems, 37, a schoolmate of DeGeneres's, says, "We won't watch her show. We are the everyday American family, the majority, The Andy Griffith Show. Not the decline of morality."

By all accounts, DeGeneres was a well-liked teen when her family moved from New Orleans to Atlanta, Texas, for her junior year in high school.

Julie Battenfield, 40, bartender at Applebee's in nearby Texarkana, says that because she and Ellen were both "outsiders" when they moved to Atlanta, they became fast friends. "It was a small town with small-town ideas. But she was very well accepted. Everybody liked her because of her sense of humor."

Ex-boyfriend Phil Rice, 39, says, "When she moved here she had short show because they're not ready to accept this kind of character."

Toward the end of January, with DeGeneres growing increasingly unhappy, things began to come together. ABC decided to keep Ellen on the air at 8:30 P.M. on Tuesdays during Arsenio's run, while Disney gave her a raise, from a reported $90,000 per episode to $125,000. A "coming out" script was written. The episode involves a male TV reporter who knew Ellen in college, visiting town with his fe-blond hair, was tanned. She caught most of the high-school boys' eyes." They dated for six months. Rice calls her "a good kisser." Of the lesbian plot direction, Rice says, "I don't think it's right."

English teacher Ruth Trumble says she enjoyed having DeGeneres, a B-plus student, in her class, but says, "Even though I don't think anything bad about Ellen, I think she's making a mistake."

Some current Atlanta High students agree. "It's just wrong," says freshman Jacob Mays. "It's not moral," says sophomore Trudy Moore. Others from the school defend Ellen. "I am not going to stop watching her show," says sophomore Fomika Mathews. Principal Qualls agrees: "She's still funny if her character's gay or not. The show is entertainment. The show is fiction."

"I do think television is a tremendous medium for experiencing, exploring, trying on, looking at, finding out about different value systems and different ways of living. What I do think is positive about Ellen DeGeneres is [the statement she makes] as a successful professional, regardless of lifestyle."

male producer (Dern). Ellen has a great evening out with them, even sleeps with the guy, only to realize it was the woman who provided the night's magic. When Ellen reveals her sexual discovery to her friends, they exchange money as if they had been betting on it all along.

Disney suggested minor revisions. Rather than resolve Ellen's crush on Dern's character halfway through the episode, Disney wanted the resolution at the end. And rather than muddy things laughs at the idea. "That would be a silly and idiotic stunt on any level," he says. "You might get a great rating one week, but winning a victory in a series is about the next 100 episodes."

What Neuman considers groundbreaking is the real-life fashion in which Ellen's character comes out—not the fact that she will be the first gay lead character in a series. "We have the rare opportunity to replicate something that happens in real life," he says. ■

To cover Kinkead’s departure, GL had Vanessa contract an unnamed degenerative disease, fake her death—leaving a husband and children in mourning—and escape to a Swiss clinic. “A lot of the fans were outraged, hideously outraged,” she says. “They thought Vanessa’s decision was the cruelest, Letters started coming into CBS saying ‘Hate the gray. Get the bottle!’ But I think it gave the story more heart and soul and reality—especially for a woman who was once so proud she wouldn’t step outside with a hair out of place. The powers that be don’t agree. As Vanessa regains her health, Kinkead will go dark again.

BASEBALL STILL DOESN'T GET IT!

As the 1997 Major League Baseball season arrives, baseball bashing has lost its status as a sport. It’s too easy. There’s no sport in shooting fish in a barrel.

After a year as the game’s latest TV savior, Fox has learned what baseball’s previous TV saviors learned—baseball doesn’t get it. Consider what baseball, its TV ratings in steady decline, has given Fox in exchange for $115 million this season.

Chicago story: Sammy Sosa (Cubs) and Belle.

1. MLB dictates that Fox select its Saturday game of the week schedule in October, well before rosters undergo radical changes. In this age of free agency, such a policy is counterproductive to MLB, Fox, and those who swallow hard and still call themselves fans. Maybe MLB should have just sent Fox darts to throw at the schedule.

Fox surely would have selected its Saturday lineup differently had it known Albert Belle would join the White Sox, and the Marlins would go on a spending binge buying, among others, Moises Alou.

2. Despite creating three divisions in each league and assigning the teams to perpetuate rivalries, MLB remains wedded to a balanced schedule that diminishes the rivalries. For example, Yanks-Royals is not a compelling matchup, yet they meet twice this year on Saturdays, giving Fox little bang for its buck.

Fox Sports’ executive producer Ed Goren compares the NBA’s sense of enterprise to MLB’s bewildering sensibilities. “[NBA commissioner] David Stern understands that when NBC has a game of the week, he’d better give it the best games possible,” he says.

3. While I’m not a fan of interleague play—it enriches owners, not fans—baseball nonetheless has done its best to minimize the appeal of these games. On June 14, MLB’s first shot at presenting interleague play, on Fox Saturday Baseball, the network was left with Orioles-Braves, Dodgers-Mariners, Red Sox-Mets, and Indians-Cards. Huh?

If Dodgers-Mariners was the kind of matchup MLB had in mind for national TV, it shouldn’t have bothered with interleague play. We’d have made darned sure that the first interleague TV weekend included Dodgers-Angels, White Sox-Cubs, and Yanks-Mets.

Ironically, Fox’s cable arm, FX, was able to select what Fox would have wanted. Monday night, June 16, FX will offer the nation a Mets-Yanks game.

A three-game regular-season rematch of last year’s World Series will be played, but not on Fox. Braves-Yanks are weekday games, thus Fox again loses out.

While we’re mindful of the problems in formulating a schedule, baseball remains headed for an even greater difficulty—finding its next TV golden goose to cook. Put it this way: If you ran your business affairs the way baseball does, you’d do your TV GUIDE reading out of a recycling bin.

If you come upon your nursery-aged sprout in the living room around lunchtime shouting at the TV set, don't be alarmed. The kid is probably watching Blue's Clues, a delightful show that encourages this type of boisterous behavior.

Blue's Clues, on Nickelodeon (12:30 P.M./ET, weekdays), is a popular preschool series with a play-along attitude. Each day, host Steven Burns scours his brightly hued, computer-animated universe for objects stamped with a dog's paw print. Once he has amassed three of these clues, he sits down in his thinking chair to deduce what fun activity his puppy, Blue, wants to pursue—building a snowman, playing musical chairs, etc. But easily bewildered Steven needs your help. Every few minutes a chorus of kids' voices will call out obvious directions or observations like "Behind you!" or "A clue!" Steven always rewards his unseen helpers with positive feedback. "Good job," he'll say enthusiastically, or "You know, you really are smart."

The cheery, rugby-shirted Burns is an ingratiating host—although I could do without his habit of breaking into vapid, singsong melodies. Of course his primary task on Blue's Clues is to stay one step behind his audience. That motivates the kids to yell out suggestions. It's the noisier version of the Socratic method.

The show is an engaging exercise in problem solving, teaching rudimentary logic, inference, and pattern recognition. The same episode is repeated all week long, the idea being that allowing youngsters to master each puzzle fosters a sense of confidence.

CBS Shows Gumbel Money—And More

Details of deal will create ripples well beyond Today and into the future of TV news called "a Gumbel deal" before signing on the dotted line.

In addition, Gumbel's pact gives him a prime-time magazine show with a fall target launch. At the press conference, Gumbel said the series will have "live elements

The press conference to announce CBS's signing of Bryant Gumbel to a five-year pact worth more than $25 million was one splashy celebration. Held in the same room used for such CBS signing coups as David Letterman and Bill Cosby, the event came complete with champagne and strawberries—and this at 10 A.M. Yet for all the hoopla, the celebration didn't obscure the serious implications the Gumbel hiring holds for CBS News and broadcast journalism in general.

CBS bound: Bryant Gumbel

Naturally, CBS brass used the deal-clinching as a public-relations bonanza. "There is great symbolic value in this," said CBS News president Andrew Heyward. "Bryant Gumbel has chosen to come to CBS when he could have gone to any of the three networks."

True. Yet while the Gumbel acquisition may be a coup for CBS, it was an extremely expensive one. In his deal, Gumbel will receive not only cash but also stock options and the opportunity to develop shows for the network's syndication company, Eyemark Entertainment. In the me-too world of network news, these concessions could produce a ripple effect. Other CBS News stars, as well as A-list talent at the other networks, are sure to seek what one high-profile agent and interviews, the things I do best." Whatever form Gumbel's project takes, its arrival ends prospects of renewal for CBS's on-again, off-again newsmag Coast to Coast, scheduled for a limited run this summer but now referred to in-house as Coast to Toast.

The prospect of a Gumbel-hosted newsmagazine could also cast a cloud over 48 Hours. CBS News executives have voiced their support for the nine-year-old newsmag, which has done yeoman's work in the tough Thursday-night slot opposite NBC's ER.

But in the wake of the Gumbel pact, 48 Hours anchor Dan Rather and the show's executive producer, Susan Zirinsky, felt it necessary to meet with the show's staff and assure them of their future. No such meeting was necessary at CBS's other newshour, 60 Minutes. Clearly, though CBS has sustained three prime-time newsmagazines before, the addition of a Gumbel-led hour raised concerns at 48 Hours.

Gumbel's signing, spun by the network as the beginning of a new era for the news division, also inevitably calls into question the future of Dan Rather, 65, who has been the embodiment of CBS News for the last decade. Gumbel, 48, was adamant at the press conference that he has "no desire whatsoever" to anchor the CBS Evening News. To bolster his case, Gumbel pointed out that he never sat in as a substitute anchor on the NBC Nightly News. "Never did it, never wanted to," said Gumbel, who claims that the real action is in prime-time news.

For NBC News, Gumbel's departure comes after a much-publicized attempt by Jack Welch, chairman of NBC parent General Electric, to keep him in the fold. However, the fact that such a high-level effort failed puts into question just how sincere that courtship was to begin with. "We did everything we could to keep Bryant in the NBC News family," says a network spokeswoman. "Nobody here ever wanted him to leave, but now that he's made his decision, we all wish him well."

However, there was one thing the network was unwilling to do to entice Gumbel to stay: keep him at Today, which, in reality, he may never have wanted to leave. According to industry sources, Gumbel's pronouncement that 1996 would be his last year on Today obscured the fact that the decision to replace Gumbel with Matt Lauer had already been made. "Back then [in early 1996], Today was in a dead heat with Good Morning America and the research on Lauer was great," says a source close to the network. "[NBC News president] Andrew Lack knew he had to guarantee Lauer the cohost slot within a certain time frame or risk losing him to GMA, so he let Bryant know that the 1996 season would be his last on Today. It's ironic, but [Lack's] decision to make the change ended up making Bryant a hot commodity and landing him a deal that more than doubled his pay."

'At CBS, he'd be certain the guys who hired him would be the guys he'd be working for'

Gumbel's hefty CBS package was also fueled by a bidding war with ABC, which ultimately lost out due in no small part to internal turmoil at the network. ABC's courtship of Gumbel was intense. Not only did ABC News chairman Rooney Arledge, whose ability to woo talent is legendary, attempt to bag Gumbel, but his boss, ABC president Robert Iger, got in on the act as well. Only weeks before Gumbel signed with CBS, the conventional wisdom was that he would choose ABC. But days before Gumbel made his decision, Arledge was bumped up from president of the news division to chairman, and David Westin, formerly Iger's number two, was named to Arledge's old post. The changing of the guard prompted questions about who was in charge at ABC News at a time when such crucial franchises as GMA and World News Tonight were in trouble. Meanwhile, with ABC suffering serious audience erosion, there had been talk about how long Iger will be around, too.

"Certainly, all the bad news out of ABC figured into [Bryant's] decision," says a close friend of Gumbel's. "At least with CBS he could be reasonably certain that the guys who hired him would be the guys he'd be working for. It also helped that [Gumbel's longtime agent] Ed Hoostratten's kid [Jon, senior vice president for business affairs] works for Eyemark, the syndication company where Bryant will set up shop."

Shortly after the signing, CBS Entertainment president Leslie Moonves bragged that bringing Gumbel aboard proved that "CBS was the place to be." Perhaps. But it's just as likely that Gumbel took a cold, hard look around and decided ABC and NBC simply weren't.

OUR VIEW

The Editors of TV GUIDE Sound Off

NOW IS THE TIME TO COME TO THE RESCUE OF RELATIVITY

Relativity is a terrific show that has not been given a fair shake. When it debuted on ABC last fall, critics and audiences alike were skeptical about its prospects as a long-term series; the central romance, between Leo Roth (David Conrad) and Isabel Lukens (Kimberly Williams), appeared to have peaked when the two fell in love during the show's premiere. At first the skepticism seemed well-founded. But then something magical happened: Rich storylines began to unfold as the couple's friends and relatives got to know one another, and we came to realize that this was a community of people we cared about. Relativity is one of the very best shows of the season, and we urge viewers to give it a second chance during its return to ABC.

The show's blossoming has gone largely unnoticed because of poor scheduling and promotion. It languished in the worst time slot imaginable given the 20- and 30-somethings it should have attracted (Saturdays at 10 P.M./ET). Relativity has also suffered from irregular airdates, which resulted in a New Year's Eve episode that appeared on January 4. Soon after that, ABC yanked the show from its lineup.

The network has now committed to air the season's final three episodes, conceived as a trilogy, Mondays at 8 P.M./ET beginning on March 31, and to postpone making a decision about the fate of the show until May. This remarkable trilogy focuses largely on one of the strongest recent plotlines: the budding attraction between Doug, Leo's neurotic roommate, and Karen, Isabel's unhappily married sister.

Viewers who turned away from the show—or who couldn't find it—have missed many other affecting storylines, including a touching romance between two teenage misfits (Leo's brother and Isabel's cousin), the finest expression of angst-ridden young love since My So-Called Life. (The comparison is apt: That still-lamented series—which ABC killed prematurely—is also the work of executive producers Edward Zwick and Marshall Herskovitz.) ABC should not make the same mistake twice, but rather have the courage to stick with a show that already has a passionate following and nurture it to mainstream ratings success. In this crowded media landscape, it takes time for a show to find its audience, and plenty of current hits were once on the endangered list (The Drew Carey Show, Seinfeld, and The X-Files, to name a few).

In a way, what is being judged is not just the fate of Relativity but that of quality character-driven dramas on network television. "Most episodic dramas have lawyers, cops, or doctors, which means they have an automatic structure," says Relativity creator and co-executive producer Jason Katims. "Shows like Relativity and Party of Five are driven by just the people in them. They're internal stories. Millions of people love these shows—it's just a question of whether there are enough millions to justify slots on network TV. I believe that there are if the shows are given a chance." That Party of Five, which was slow to build an audience, is posting its best ratings ever is a signal that a significant number of people will commit themselves—if given time. Nielsen numbers can be relative, but the value of Relativity cannot be questioned.

Sarah Kendzior
Bronxville, N.Y.

Thanks for the great cover story on Howard Stern. No matter how lousy I feel, he'll have me laughing. I'm so glad you printed a positive article. There is so much more to him than penis jokes and strippers.

Tony Garcia
the Bronx

I could hardly believe your story of how Howard Stern made a comedy bit out of the miscarriage of his wife, Alison. I always knew Stern was crass, but the loss of an infant is very traumatic for a woman and hardly something to be taken lightly. This is one family that definitely won't be going to see Mr. Stern's movie.

Roberta Robbins
Sumner, Wash.

I do understand, of course, that Howard Stern is popular with some elements of society, but child pornography, racism and Nazi ideology are also popular with some elements of society. Stern's picture doesn't belong on the cover of some editions of your magazine, but on the bottom of some bird cage.

HITS & MISSES

Brief Reviews of This Week's Notable Programs

BY SUSAN STEWART

ABOUT US: THE DIGNITY OF CHILDREN (Sat., ABC) "What we live through is who we become." These words from host Oprah Winfrey open this powerful special in which children and some adults recall seminal experiences. They range from three Vietnamese-American sisters to a teen, now HIV-positive, whose mother sold him into prostitution. Dignity's riveting interviews are diluted by heavy-handed graphic devices. These stories speak for themselves. My score (0-10): 8

INVESTIGATIVE REPORTS (Sat., A&E) It didn't start with Watergate! "The Secret White House Tapes" confirms that every president from FDR through Nixon secretly taped conversations while they were chief executives. Excerpts, along with expert commentary and historical footage, make for juicy portraits of recent Oval Office occupants. Most dramatic is a chilling account of the Cuban missile crisis, but the Mr. Personality award goes to Lyndon Johnson, master of telephonic manipulation. My score: 8

ESCAPE FROM ATLANTIS (Sat., Starz!) Single Chicago dad takes sulking teens sailing. Suddenly, they're sucked into a weird time warp. If this made-for-cable movie were merely a campy trip, a "Suburban Family Robinson," it might be fun. But it's junked up with psychobabble and too much time travel. At one point, a Minotaur in Elizabethan dress reads a crystal in a Roman temple. Beam us back to the Windy City! My score: 2

A WALTON EASTER (Sun., CBS) There's something wistful and elegiac about this seventh Waltons reunion. John-Boy (Richard Thomas) awaits the birth of his first child, and Ma and Pa and the rest of the family gather 'round. The plot progresses as lazily as a meandering mountain stream. It leaves lots of time to remember how lovable this rustic show used to be and ponder why this TV-movie doesn't measure up. My score: 4

Thomas in A Walton Easter.

BIOGRAPHY (Mon., A&E) A profile of Nancy Reagan offers clarification on two points: the former First Lady's age (75) and the amount of time elapsed between her wedding to Ronald Reagan and the birth of her daughter, Patti (seven months). Other than that, Biography is charitable toward Mrs. Reagan, who appears valiant and vulnerable in the face of her husband's Alzheimer's disease. The final shot shows the couple in Western garb, heading slowly into the sunset. My score: 7

SMART GUY (Wed., WB) This new sitcom stars young Tahj Mowry as a 10-year-old genius who goes to high school with his teen siblings. Rising above its silly premise, Guy makes Mowry more than a one-note nerd. His childlike wisdom makes him the perfect foil for the adolescents around him. He and his costars (including John Marshall Jones as his father) are appealing as they learn and teach life lessons. My score: 6

Note: Schedules vary in some areas.

SOAP OPERA GUIDE

BY SUSIE WETMORE AND TOM MITCHELL

ALL MY CHILDREN

Last week (March 24-28), Skye agreed to disrupt Hayley's wedding so Tanner wouldn't reveal the paternity-test switch. Erica returned home showing off her newly adopted baby.

ANOTHER WORLD

Grant flipped out at his bail hearing; some believed it was all an act, but Vicky thought he might really be insane. A fire engulfed Carlino's. Cindy told Jake about her plan to kill Grant.

AS THE WORLD TURNS

Margo, shaken by a discovery, doubled up on her medication. Emily and Kirk tricked Lucinda into meeting their demands. Lisa uncovered David's shady past. Tom jumped a prowler. Ryder found Hal unconscious.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

In the aftermath of Grant's shooting, Ridge was arrested and Brooke flew home. Ridge's fingerprints were later found on the gun. A cop speculated that others could have shot Grant.

THE CITY

The series ended with an unexpected twist of fate and a call to Jocelyn from Sydney Chase's assistant. Tracy got the goods on Carla and Gino's cronies. Angie found a baby in an alley.

Sunset Beach
Sarah Buxton

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Kristen and Susan's conflict escalated. Bo's operation against King took a potentially explosive turn, as Hope tried to infiltrate the drug underworld. Sami believed Carrie and Austin were having an affair.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

With Jax's help, Brenda faced her dependency on pain pills. Sonny focused on finding the city's drug source. Tony rescued Bobbie from a fire. Katherine took Stefan's job offer at GH.

GUIDING LIGHT

Alexandra confirmed Alan's worst nightmare: Amanda is their sister. Annie was smug as Reva realized that Annie is her long-lost sibling. Josh made a major decision about Reva. Buzz lost Coop at the hospital.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE

Andy and Antonio foiled Casey and found that R.J. was in on the setup. Cassie walked in on Kevin and Tea. Maggie confessed to Ian. Todd asked Blair to move in, for Starr's sake.

SUNSET BEACH

Eddie seized the briefcase from Annie and Ben, but Annie managed to keep the jewels. Olivia wanted to tell Cole he's Elaine's son. Paula invited Gabi to stay with her and Ricardo.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

As Nick and Sharon got tragic news about their baby, Grace persuaded a caretaker in Madison to consider giving young Cassie back to Sharon. Nick opted not to tell Sharon of his job offer.

CLOSE-UP

ABOUT US: THE DIGNITY OF
CHILDREN (CC) 53
SAT. 8 PM 7 21 53

Oprah Winfrey hosts a moving and bitter-sweet celebration of childhood.

The special features comments from both children and adults, interspersed with video snapshots, slice-of-life reenactments and nostalgic images. Noted writers Laura Cunningham, Nicholasa Mohr and Brent Staples share poignant memories of their youthful trials and triumphs, and Winfrey herself recalls that her "single greatest feeling of growing up...is being alone." But most affecting are the impressions of the kids themselves, who offer simple, eloquent takes on life, religion, family, love and what keeps them "growing and thriving with an unbelievable grace." DIABOLIQUE

Sharon Stone (pictured), Isabelle Adjani and Chazz Palminteri star in this 1996 remake of the 1955 French classic.

Palminteri plays a sadistic headmaster who alienates both his wife (Adjani) and mistress (Stone) with his violent temper. In desperation, the two decide to poison him and dump his body in the school's murky swimming pool. But when the pool is drained, the body is gone, and the women are horrified. Did he somehow survive the poison or has he returned from the dead? In the meantime, a wily detective (Kathy Bates) begins to snoop around the school. Rated R: strong language; sexual situations. Simon: Spalding Gray. Edie: Shirley Knight. Leo: Alan Garfield. Erik: Adam Hann-Byrd. (1:50)

REPORTS
SAT. 9 PM (A&E)

THE SECRET WHITE HOUSE TAPES

A fascinating edition eavesdrops on recordings made by five Presidents in the Oval Office.

All together, seven Chief Executives are known to have recorded telephone and other conversations during their tenures in the White House. Excerpted here are tapes made by FDR, Truman, JFK, LBJ and Nixon. (Recordings by Eisenhower and Reagan are not yet declassified.) Among the remarkable exchanges presented is one that illustrates Lyndon Johnson's exasperation over Vietnam. In 1965 he told Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, "I don't see that we have...a plan for victory—militarily or diplomatically." Yet weeks later, he committed thousands of troops to the conflict. (2:00)

Gentle, lovable and playful, the African elephant is one of Mother Nature's most beloved creatures. Now, a pair of young elephants is brought to life with charm and personality in a delightful new sculpture, "African Elephants at Play." Portrayed in a moment of playful friendship, this endearing twosome shares a special "hug."

These endangered babies are wonderfully realistic and totally irresistible—from their large, floppy ears and curled-up trunks, to their sparkling eyes and heartwarming expressions!

"African Elephants at Play" is the premiere issue in the Endangered Young'uns™ Sculpture Collection, featuring delightful pairs of animal babies nestled in their own natural habitats. As an owner, you'll be invited to preview each new work in the collection without obligation. Each sculpture will be hand-painted and accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity. Of course our 30 Day 100% Satisfaction Guarantee assures you order without risk. Submit your order today!

All things bright and beautiful, All creatures great and small, All things wise and wonderful, The Lord God made them all.

This classic poem is the inspiration for the Nature's Little Cherubs Figurine Collection, created by world-renowned artist, Jacqueline Bardner Smith. Blessed with intricate detail from the tips of their tiny wings to their bare little toes, these heavenly figurines are a sweet reminder of the wonder of nature's many miracles. Presented by The Hamilton Collection, each is meticulously hand-painted and accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity.

Subscribers will receive one whimsical, handcrafted angel each month, beginning with "Cherub of the Stars." Each angel is in a seated position and can be perched anywhere in your home. You will receive the decorative shelf inscribed with the poem at no additional cost with your fifth shipment. As always, Hamilton's 30-Day 100% Satisfaction Guarantee assures you order without risk! Subscribe today!

100% Satisfaction Guarantee

At Hamilton, your satisfaction is guaranteed! If not completely delighted, you may return any figurine in this collection within 30 days of receipt, for a prompt replacement, credit or full refund.

Patty Sheehan

DINAH SHORE CHAMPIONSHIP

The first LPGA major of the season at The Mission Hills Country Club in Rancho Mirage, Cal. (Live)

Hall of Famer Patty Sheehan claimed her sixth major title and 35th career win in dramatic fashion here last year. "I've been in some pressure-packed situations, but this was different because I had grown up watching the Dinah Shore on TV and always dreamed of winning it," says Sheehan. Needing a two-putt for the win and faced with an obstructed view 120 feet from the pin, Sheehan stroked the ball 10 feet from the cup, then dropped it in for the victory. Sheehan admits that "after partying for a few hours" after the tourney, "[we] went out and tried to hit that long putt again and didn't even come close."

A WALTON EASTER

Waite,

Thomas

The endearing Virginia clan gets back together at the old homestead in the Blue Ridge Mountains to celebrate Easter 1970.

Like the Depression-era stories of the Emmy-winning series, this 1997 TV-movie unfolds as a gentle, character-driven drama that extols such simple virtues as commitment, integrity, family unity and love. The film's various interrelated plots center on plans for the 40th wedding anniversary of parents John and Olivia (Ralph Waite, Michael Learned); a minor crisis in the marriage of John-Boy and his pregnant wife, Janet; and a romance for Elizabeth (Kami Cotler). John-Boy: Richard Thomas. Janet: Kate McNeil. (2:00)

GET YOUR DEGREE AT HOME

Have you ever wondered what a Degree might be worth to you in your job or career? According to the U.S. Department of Commerce it means a lot—Americans with an Associate Degree average nearly $10,000 more in yearly income than those with just a High School Diploma.

International Correspondence Schools offers you a way to get a Specialized Associate Degree in 11 of today's growing fields—without having to go to college full time. With ICS, you study at home, in your spare time—so you don't have to give up your present job while you train for a better one. Choose from exciting majors like Business Management, Accounting, Computer Science, Mechanical Engineering and more!

ICS gives you 65 ways to improve your education and get a better job. Earn a Degree in just 2 years. Get a Career Diploma in as little as 6 months.

Even if you have no previous experience, you can get valuable job skills in today's top fields! Step-by-step instructions make it easy to learn. Prepare for promotions, pay raises—even start a new career or business of your own! Our home-study experts have worked with specialists in each career field to produce comprehensive training that can help you get the job you want.

Your training includes everything you need!

Books, lessons, learning aids—even professional-quality tools and equipment—are sent right to your door so you can master your training and move ahead to a career. And it's all included in the low tuition price you pay!

Your education is Nationally Accredited and Recognized!

ICS training is so impressive and successful that thousands of American corporations—including business giants like Ford, IBM, Coca-Cola, AT&T, Saturn*—have used our training methods to educate their own employees. Plus, ICS training is accredited by the Accrediting Commission of the Distance Education and Training Council, which is listed in the U.S. Department of Education as a nationally recognized accrediting agency.

Send today for FREE information about ICS at-home training!

Simply fill in your name and address on the post-paid card to the right. Then, write in the name and number of the one program you're most interested in, detach the card, and drop it in the mail. We'll rush you free information and a color brochure about how you can take advantage of the opportunities in the field you've chosen. Act today!

*These companies have used ICS to train their employees. This does not imply an endorsement.

Choose the program you're most interested in from the choices listed below. Then fill it in on the post-paid card, add your name and address, and mail it right away!

VINTAGE ALL MY CHILDREN (CC)
MON. 12 noon 7
12:30 PM 21 53

Susan Lucci in 1970

For the next nine weeks, ABC presents memorable chapters of its long-running soaps All My Children, One Life to Live and General Hospital. Reba McEntire introduces the half-hours, which begin with three weeks of AMC.
☐ Monday: Spoiled teen Erica Kane (Susan Lucci) questions her mother about her biological father and utters the now-classic line: "Pine Valley isn't exactly the corner of Hollywood and Vine." (From 1970, the first season)
☐ Tuesday & Wednesday: Tom discovers Erica is on the pill; Langley and Phoebe are secretly engaged. (1979)
☐ Thursday: Cliff and Nina get married. (1980)
☐ Friday: Jesse proposes to Angie. (1983)

THE PIANO

This 1993 Australian film garnered Oscars for director Jane Campion's screenplay, Best Actress Holly

Hunter and Supporting Actress Anna Paquin. Set in 19th-century New Zealand, the drama opens with the arrival of mute widow Ada McGrath (Hunter) and her daughter (Paquin). Ada has committed to a prearranged marriage with a landowner named Stewart (Sam Neill), but problems begin when he trades her piano to his estate manager Baines (Harvey Keitel) rather than transporting it home. The deal includes Ada's giving piano lessons to Baines—an arrangement that leads to an unexpected liaison. (2:30)

WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

6 + 1 + 5 = 12

Pick 6 free CDs or cassettes Buy 1 at regular Club price within a year Get 5 more free That's 12 for the price of 1

NOTHING MORE TO BUY, EVER!

Shipping and handling is added to each selection

4 Days Free Listening: Take up to 10 days to listen to your new music and to read up on your Club membership. If you're not completely happy, send back your free selections at our expense. That's it. You're done.

What's Next? If you're happy with your Club membership, stick around and discover the pleasures of music shopping at home. Every three weeks you'll get a new issue of your free Club magazine with hundreds, and sometimes thousands, of titles to choose from. Inside each issue are the latest rumors (facts, too) on new acts and trends in music, interviews with major artists, and editors' recommendations on hot picks and old favorites.

Music Tailored To Your Taste: When you sign up, you tell us the kind of music you're interested in, so we can customize your Club magazine to feature the kinds of music you like. Your magazine will also always offer a Featured Selection that the editors think you'd like. If you want it, don't do a thing and you'll receive it automatically. If you don't want it, just return the Music Selection Card provided, by the specified date. You'll always have at least 10 days to decide. If for any reason you receive a Featured Selection you don't want, you may return it at our expense. You can also pick other hits from your music magazine, or nothing at all. It's always your choice. At BMG you buy only what you want, when you want, and as much or as little as you want. You're the boss.

And By The Way—Deals! As a member, you'll receive discounts as high as 60%, and even 70% off our regular Club prices—($14.98 to $16.98 for CDs; $9.98 to $11.98 for cassettes)—plus clearance CDs as low as $1.99 and even more free selections. The savings start from day one and increase the longer you stay!

Getting Out, Getting In: We're sure you'll love us. But if you don't, or get tired of us, you can cancel your membership at any time after you've purchased your one regular-Club-price selection. Then, if you change your mind, you may reactivate your membership at any time and we'll reinstate the discount level and privileges you've already earned. Just write us or call.

One Last Thing: Our introductory offer is so extraordinary and our continuing savings so generous that we must limit membership in this Club to one per person, per year.

If reply card is missing, please write to: BMG Music Service, P.O. Box 91001, Indianapolis, IN 46291-0002

CHOOSE YOUR HITS! SEND NO MONEY NOW.

I'd like to join BMG. Please send me these 6 free selections. I will then buy 1 selection at the regular Club price within a year, and choose 5 more free. (A shipping and handling charge is added to each selection.)

1. RUSH me these 6 hits now (indicate by number):

A 2-CD set (2x) counts as 2 selections.

2. Send my selections on (check one only): ☐ CDs ☐ Cassettes

3. I've checked the one music category I like best (but I can change my mind at any time).

TUESDAY

TV GUIDELINES

☐ Mysterious Man of the Shroud: Is the Shroud of Turin really Christ's burial linen? According to the scientific data examined in this documentary, the answer is...maybe. —8 PM 2 15 22 33

☐ Everything's wrong on Something So Right when Jack and Carly's friend (guest star Kevin Nealon) is dumped by his wife on April Fools' Day—and Jack thinks it's just a gag when his pal comes looking for solace. —8:30 PM 5 16 33 39

☐ Frasier enters the batting cage in an uproarious attempt to show his son he can play ball ("Is this a pitching machine or a particle accelerator?" he asks as the ball whizzes by). —9 PM 5 16 33 39

☐ Frontline presents a wrenching BBC report that personalizes the 1994 Rwandan genocide as a teenage survivor describes her ordeal. —9 PM 34 39; 10 PM 11; 2 AM [Early Wed.], 4 AM [Early Wed.] 39

☐ Spin City: A few weeks ago it was the hearing-impaired community. Now, it's a women's caucus that's offended by a misunderstanding involving the mayor. —9:30 PM 7 21 53

☐ National issues hit home in Imaging America, a three-part newsmagazine that looks at how different cities deal with problems facing the Nation at large. The opener visits Portland, Ore., where the big issue is urban sprawl and how to contain it. —10 PM 34 39

☐ Speaking from prison, KGB "mole" Aldrich Ames describes his treachery almost offhandedly in the chilling middle episode of The CIA: America's Secret Warriors. —10 PM, 1 AM [Early Wed.] DIS

TV GUIDE'S MOVIE RATINGS

Movies are indicated by the symbol M plus a rating of ★★★★ (excellent), ★★★ (good), ★★ (fair) or ★ (poor). Our evaluations are based on a number of factors, including a consensus of leading critics, quality of cast and director, awards earned and box-office performance. TV GUIDE does not evaluate movies (signified by an absence of stars) that are made-for-television, or if too few facts are known (example: a minor foreign film) or the film belongs to a formulaic genre (such as B-Westerns). Movies may be edited for television; our ratings are based on the original, complete film.

House of Fabergé™ creates a spectacular Limited Edition collector egg accented with 24 karat gold and a ruby-red Swarovski Crystal.

In his day, Peter Carl Fabergé re-created nature's treasures in precious works of art prized by European royalty. Today these masterworks are housed in prestigious museums, to be admired and viewed from afar. Yet now you can own a treasure in the same revered tradition. Jewels in the Garden by the House of Fabergé. A wondrous collector egg sculptured with demanding openwork in hand-painted Tesori® porcelain, a blend of powdered porcelain and resins. Accented with 24 karat gold and adorned with a ruby-red Swarovski crystal. Just $37.50, this Limited Edition will close forever after just 95 casting days. Jewels in the Garden, available only from The Franklin Mint, solely appointed by the House of Fabergé to accept your order.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. If you wish to return any Franklin Mint purchase, you may do so within 30 days of your receipt of that purchase for replacement, credit or refund.

Issued in a Worldwide Limited Edition.

The delicate sculpture is accented with a ruby-red Swarovski crystal.

Powerful and exciting. Original art evoking the majesty of our proud Native American heritage. And the first knife ever created by Ben Nighthorse, winner of more than 200 awards and the most famous American Indian artist of our time.

Aglow with accents of silver and 24 karat gold, it is issued by the American Indian Heritage Foundation in a spectacular Limited Edition forever restricted to just 95 casting days.

The sculptured head of a Buffalo, long revered by the Cheyenne, is dramatically crafted, painted by hand, then set against Buffalo horns coated with 24 karat gold to serve as the hand guard for this dramatic knife. The handle is accented with silver, plus cabochons rich with the beautiful look of turquoise. A crown of faux turquoise is set into the pommel.

Imported complete with its own wall display. Just $195, in convenient monthly installments, from The Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, PA 19091-0001.

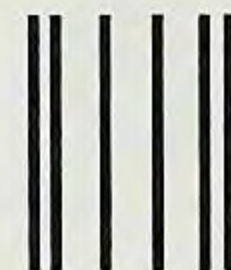

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. If you wish to return any Franklin Mint purchase, you may do so within 30 days of your receipt of that purchase, for replacement, credit or refund.

The Buffalo-head sculpture is individually painted by hand, to bring out all its rugged detail.

To maximize its impact, it is designed to serve as the hand guard for this magnificent knife.

WEDNESDAY

TV GUIDELINES

Phil Hartman is reunited with former Saturday Night Live castmate Jon Lovitz in a hilarious NewsRadio in which Bill lands in a mental facility after reacting poorly to a parking ticket. The rib-tickling outing is the sitcom's 50th episode. —8 PM 5 16 33

Tahj Mowry follows his big sisters Tia and Tamera (Sister, Sister) when he gets his own sitcom, Smart Guy. Mowry plays a brainy 10-year-old who's bumped from fourth grader to high-school sophomore. See the Close-up on p. 142. —8:30 PM 9 WGN

In a cleverly scripted Feds, it's one step forward and two back for Michael: the mob case is put back in his court, but it's soon downsized because Bucci knows about the investigation. —9 PM 2 15 22

Party of Five fans take note: the series' third season wraps up, and there are developments that co-creator Amy Lippman says will "change [Charlie, Julia and Bailey's] relationships on the show." Asked about the possible return of Kirsten to the storyline, Lippman says that Kirsten and Charlie have "unfinished business between them." See the Close-up on p. 143. —9 PM 28 32 55

Movie: "A Prayer in the Dark." The values of a devout Quaker (Lynda Carter) are put to the test when her family is taken hostage in this involving 1997 cable drama. The film handles religious issues with remarkable sensitivity. See the Close-up on p. 147. —9 PM USA

Burt Young (an Oscar nominee for "Rocky") is superb as a serial rapist hounded by McCoy in an absorbing Law & Order that ends with a surprising twist. —10 PM 5 16 33

Debut: Tahj Mowry plays 10-year-old prodigy T.J. Henderson, who makes the leap from grade school to high school in this family-oriented sitcom.

In the opener, T.J. has trouble learning the ropes outside the classroom and pays the price for breaking "The Code," which states you never rat on a friend. The friend in question is Mo (Omar Gooding), a star player on the basketball team. When T.J. tattles on Mo for smoking in the boys room, Mo is suspended from the team and misses an important game. Ostracized and unhappy, T.J. hatches a misguided plot to make amends by sabotaging the rival team's report cards. Marcus: Jason Weaver.

Campbell and London

The series' third season ends on a positive note: the show has been renewed and its ratings are climbing, thanks to a fiercely loyal, young audience.

What's more, the storylines take a more upbeat turn. According to executive producer Amy Lippman, the finale is much lighter than some of this year's key episodes, and unlike the 1996 season-ender, "there's a wedding." The outing also finds Charlie and Grace (Matthew Fox, Tamara Taylor) wishing things were different between them; Bailey feeling alone when Sarah leaves for vacation; and Griffin (Jeremy London) stinging from news that Julia (Neve Campbell) may go to Europe with Justin (Michael Goorjian). Carter and Polo

A PRAYER IN THE DARK

Lynda Carter gives a strong performance as a pious Quaker in this intense 1997 cable drama about faith and family ties.

Carter plays Emily Hayworth, who becomes a prisoner in her own home when her friend Jimmy—a former Quaker—breaks into her house with two heavily armed men. The three have escaped from prison, and they threaten to kill Emily's family unless she steals $4 million from the bank where she works. She agrees, but once Emily is out of the house, she and others in the Quaker community devise a plan to peacefully rescue her family...and perhaps Jimmy's soul. Jimmy: Colin Ferguson. Janet: Teri Polo. (2:00)

Another trip down EZ Streets

Critics and CBS were not the only ones who loved EZ Streets [The Couch Critic, March 8]. Many of us wondered why more people didn't like the show. Anyway, a double Cheer for a second chance for EZ Streets, the best new show since Hill Street Blues and ER.

Elaine Smith
Pittsburgh

I was more than a little puzzled by your evident enthusiasm for EZ Streets in your March 1 issue ["EZ Does It"]. It is not the darkness or the complexity that troubles me; I enjoy drama that makes me think. What bothers me is the savage brutality of the violence, such as a bloody close-up of a nail being hammered into a hand. You can keep the sadistic world of EZ Streets; give me Law & Order in every sense.

Tracey J. Pennington
West Hartford, Conn.

How can you review EZ Streets without mentioning the haunting music? More than half the show's appeal for me is the unexpectedly beautiful score.

Mary Forbord
Salinas, Cal.

Taking Issue with ER and TV Guide

Everybody knows shows like ER are taped far in advance of the actual airing, so why would TV GUIDE take offense that ER had the untimely audacity to show copies of TV GUIDE that were a month old on a magazine rack [Cheers & Jeers, March 8]? Instead of quibbling about it, you should have been grateful for the free promo. Not that anyone else noticed.

Doris Barrett
Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Correspondence for this department should be addressed to Letters Department, TV GUIDE, Radnor, Pa. 19088. No anonymous letters will be published.

THURSDAY

TV GUIDELINES

☐ Movie: Broad humor (on such topics as artificial insemination) and a serious message about race relations combine in 1993's "Made in America," a ★★ comedy that stays afloat due to the chemistry between its stars, Whoopi Goldberg and Ted Danson. —6:05 PM (MAX)

☐ High Incident fits another piece into the puzzle of Mike Rhoades (Blair Underwood), who meets the man responsible for the death of his fiancée and learns that she wasn't the man's original target. —8 PM (7) (33)

☐ Claude Debussy's masterpiece "The Martyrdom of Saint Sebastian" is offered Live from Lincoln Center, as Kurt Masur leads the New York Philharmonic and Westminster Symphonic Choir. The program opens with a Monteverdi concert aria. —8 PM (34) (39); 3 AM [Early Fri.] (39)

☐ Stephanie Kramer played a cop on Hunter, but on a bittersweet Moloney she's a woman who's on the inside looking out—a prison inmate who heads a program that helps fellow convicts. —9 PM (2) (15) (22) (33)

☐ An execution by injection is seen in graphic detail on a riveting New York Undercover repeat that involves Lt. Cooper in a hostage situation. —9 PM (23) (32) (33) (34)

☐ Movie: Nicole Kidman won a Golden Globe award for her deft performance in 1995's "To Die For," a dark ★★★ satire. —9 PM, 4:20 AM [Early Fri.] (HBO)

☐ 48 Hours reports on a sexual child-abuse case in Wenatchee, Wash., focusing on Sarah "Sam" Doggett, a teen whose parents were convicted (wrongly, she says) of abusing her sister. —10 PM (2) (15) (22)

A look at the WBC welterweight title bout

TV GUIDE/159

Any man who thinks promises were made to be broken should see what it does to his family.

Witness the positive impact of promises kept.

Without a father's influence children are nine times more likely to drop out of school and ten times more likely to use drugs. All across America families are destroyed daily by the lack of involvement from a husband or father. See how Promise Keepers helps men keep their promises.

Educational/Informational Programming

To Our Readers: TV Guide uses the symbol EI to identify shows that programmers deem of educational or informational value for children. Under new FCC requirements, all local broadcast stations must eventually air three such hours of children's programming each week. When stations provide the information to us, TV Guide will label these shows to help you identify the best viewing choices for your family.

THE TRUTH ABOUT CATS & DOGS

Janeane Garofalo,
Ben Chaplin

A deliciously deadpan turn by Janeane Garofalo highlights this sly 1996 twist on the Cyrano de Bergerac story. Dr. Abby Barnes (Garofalo), the veterinarian host of a radio call-in show, is a bright and witty woman who's missing one thing: self-esteem. Her insecurity compels her to stretch the truth about her looks during a chat with a charming caller (Ben Chaplin). But her efforts to avoid a meeting are thwarted when he pops up at the station. In a panic, Abby persuades her neighbor (Uma Thurman) to pose as her—a ruse doomed to fail. Rated PG-13 for strong language and sexual situations. (1:40)

TV GUIDE'S MOVIE RATINGS

Movies are indicated in the daily listings by the symbol M plus a rating of ★★★★ (excellent), ★★★ (good), ★★ (fair) or ★ (poor). Our evaluations are based on a number of factors, including a consensus of leading critics, quality of cast and director, awards earned and box-office performance. An M without stars indicates a made-for-television or unrated movie. TV GUIDE does not evaluate movies if the criteria can't be applied because too few facts are known (example: a minor foreign film) or the film belongs to a formulaic genre (such as B-Westerns). Movies may be edited for television; our ratings are based on the original, complete film.

PARENTAL GUIDANCE

The official MPAA content rating (G, PG, PG-13, R or NC-17) is provided for every film that has received one (NR: not rated). We also offer advisories about content (adult themes, sexual situations, strong language, violence or nudity), but parents should be aware that films containing adult themes or sexual situations frequently involve nudity, even though our advisory may not explicitly say so.

THE PATRIC WALKER HOROSCOPE

By SALLY BROMPTON

ARIES (March 21-April 20): This is a splendid time to start a new project, even though there may be obstacles to overcome. By the end of the week, even your opponents will begin seeing things your way. Be careful not to overidealize what should be a down-to-earth affair.

For your extended Aries horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5558*

TAURUS (April 21-May 21): Don't make the mistake of keeping too tight a grip on your emotions—certain facts need to be spelled out loud and clear. After communicative Mercury enters your birth sign on Tuesday, you will find it easier to share your thoughts and feelings.

For your extended Taurus horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5559*

GEMINI (May 22-June 21): You seem to be expecting more of someone close to you than they may be able to deliver. You would be wise to lower your expectations to increase the chances of them being fulfilled. This is a week for being practical—don't get carried away by wishful thinking.

For your extended Gemini horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5560*

CANCER (June 22-July 23): Seldom have you been in such a marvelous position to take on the world—and win. Potent planetary activity at the midheaven point of your chart means that you can challenge even the great. The more ambitious you are this week, the more you stand to gain.

For your extended Cancer horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5561*

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23): Your benevolence may have encouraged people to take advantage of you; call a halt to it now. With the Sun, your ruler, linked to Saturn, Venus and Jupiter, it's a case of easy come, easy go. Be realistic—you cannot buy love.

For your extended Leo horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5562*

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23): Your finances may still be a trouble spot, but you have the opportunity to create a workable blueprint for a joint venture. Your ability to pull together the fine threads is indisputable. You must try to take a broad view of the enterprise as a whole.

For your extended Virgo horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5563*

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23): Nobody is trying to trip you up. Nobody is deliberately trying to pull the wool over your eyes.

The actions of those close to you, initially hard to fathom, should become crystal clear by Wednesday. Trust is sometimes a more powerful weapon than suspicion.

For your extended Libra horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5564*

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23): Conserve your energy this week or run the risk of harming your health. Even Scorpions need to relax on occasion, and this is one of those times. You will be surprised at how much can be delegated—or eliminated—if you try.

For your extended Scorpio horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5565*

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): You need a break and you deserve to let your hair down. Celestial activity gives you the opportunity to do both—especially after a Sun-Venus liaison on Wednesday. By building up speed gradually, you won't have to worry about losing the race.

For your extended Sagittarius horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5566*

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20): There is every chance that you will resolve a family or domestic problem this week, but don't rush things. You will get further in a supporting role than by taking center stage. Play for keeps rather than for quick results.

For your extended Capricorn horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5567*

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19): Get the chores out of the way early in the week and you will be wonderfully placed to be more active in social affairs. In fact, if there's something that needs saying, you could hardly pick a better time to say it.

For your extended Aquarius horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5568*

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20): No matter how unenthusiastic you may be about sorting out money matters, you now have a real chance to do so. After Mercury changes signs on Tuesday, life will lighten up and you will be able to view the immediate future more positively than the recent past.

For your extended Pisces horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5569*

97% Of Prizm Owners
Would Recommend Prizm To A Friend.
(But Lending It To One... That's Another Story.)

97% of Prizm® owners would recommend Prizm to a friend. That's a lot of people liking this car for a lot of reasons. Year after year.

So what's so great about it? Well, Prizm is solid. Like the way the doors snugly fit into the frame. Prizm is smart. When you sit down, nothing is way over there. Everything is right here. Where it should be. Prizm is dependable. Like a good friend it will be there for you every time.

So get to know Prizm. And if your friends start getting too friendly with your new purchase, be gentle, but firm. Say, "Nice boots. Now get them out of my car and buy your own Prizm."
